

WALL STREET STOCK LIST READJUSTED DOWNWARD

Number of Standard Industrials and Rails Range Down 1 to 5 Points, Few Specialties 10 to 22 Points.

SHARP GAIN IN WHEAT FUTURES

Record-Breaking First Half Year Report Made by Chrysler Corporation After Close of Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Extensive downward readjustment of prices, which carried a long list of standard industrials and rails down 1 to 5 points, and a few specialties down 10 to 22 points, in today's stock market contrasted with a sensational jump in grain futures.

There was nothing in the day's news to influence the heavy selling of stocks although many brokerage houses leaned to the opinion that the recent advance in many issues had been too rapid and that a "technical reaction" was due. Call money held steady all day at 7 per cent, and there was no change in time money rates.

Lack of demand, rather than overabundant supply, continued to keep the situation on call money steady during the day. Money brokers reported enough funds on hand to take care of needs, notwithstanding the calling by banks of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000, and the fact that Federal funds again were being bid for at 10 points higher, as 5 1/2 per cent. Limited character of demand for new accommodation during the last fortnight has some of the money lenders considerably puzzled, in view of the apparent activity in the stock market. This is due to one of two conditions, either that traders are financing themselves on a large scale by doing business directly through the banks, or that selling in some directions is releasing sufficient money to finance bullish activity in others.

Record Chrysler Report.

One of the most interesting developments of the day was the publication of a record-breaking first half year report by the Chrysler Corporation after the close of the market. With the exception of Auburn Motors, which closed nearly 10 points higher, most of the automotive issues were under pressure although General Motors, after selling down to a new low, recovered nearly all of its loss.

Allied Chemical broke 22 points and rallied 4. Case, Typewriter Machine dropped 21 points. Western Union fell 1/2 point and such recent favorites as American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Sears Roebuck, National Cash Register, U. S. Steel common, Mexican Seaboard and Missouri Pacific and "Katy" common closed 1/2 to nearly 4 points lower.

General Electric Advances.

General Electric was one of the few outstanding strong spots, soaring more than 11 points to a new high at 36 1/2, and retaining all but 1/2 point of its gain.

Wall Street was a trifle perturbed by a sharp drop in Allied Chemical on relatively light selling. This weakness could not be readily explained particularly when consideration was given the fact that stocks in which it is believed to have substantial interest, namely Steel common, and New York Central among others, have shown such marked appreciation and are holding currently near the peak levels of their history. Allied Chemical showed $11.12 a share after the usual liberal write-down, and is expected to reflect in the year's results the operations of a new atmospheric nitrogen plant constructed last year at Hopewell, N. J.

Wheat futures ran up about 7 cents a bushel on the absence of rain in Canada and unfavorable crop reports from the American Northwest; corn advanced about 3 cents a bushel. Cotton dropped about 3/4 a bale on more favorable weather.

Trading in the foreign exchange market was featured by the advance of about half a cent in Japanese yen and a further advance in sterling cables to around $4.85-5.16. Many tourist expenditures are being responsible for the recent advance in British and continental currencies.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on Pages 27, 28 and 29.

GIRL MAKES FIRST PARACHUTE JUMP ON FIRST PLANE RIDE

New York Stenographer Lands Safely From Height of 2000 Feet While 10,000 Look On.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Miss Marjorie Klingler, 15-year-old stenographer, has realized an ambition of almost a year to become a parachute jumper. Until yesterday she had never been up in an airplane, much less knew what it meant to leap with a parachute.

But every Sunday for the past several months she has been visiting Roosevelt Field to watch others do it and to beg officials to let her try it.

Yesterday John Wagner told her she would take her up. She strapped on a parachute. When they reached a height of 2000 feet, she leaped, with 10,000 persons who had been told about it through megaphones, watched breathlessly.

She made a perfect landing on the Westbury polo field and was taken back to the airport in an automobile. She was brought before the loud speaker and made her first speech.

The party traveled from Moscow, where they arrived last week. Their train consisted of eight of the Government's finest sleeping cars and two dining cars, and was accompanied by special attendants accompanied the visitors.

The Soviet Tourist Bureau imported $1500 worth of American coffee, cigarettes and cigars so the visitors would not lack for these articles during their month's tour.

3 CONVICTS KILLED IN RIOT OF 1300 AT DANNEMORA, N. Y.

Two of Penitentiary Inmates Slain Were Serving Life Terms—Revolt Lasts for Five Hours.

CARPENTER SHOP IS SET ON FIRE

Prisoners in State Prison Fail to Rush Wall by Ladder Method After Injuring Two Guards.

By the Associated Press.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., July 22.—Three convicts, two of them serving life sentences, were shot and killed during a five-hour riot of 1300 inmates of Clinton prison here today, Warden Harry M. Kaiser said in a statement issued after the revolt had been quelled and the prisoners had marched back to their cells early this afternoon.

Many inmates were in the prison hospital being treated for gunshot wounds inflicted by armed guards during the revolt.

The dead convicts, according to the Warden, were:

Herman Reese, 46 years old, of Buffalo, serving a life term as a fourth offender; Harold F. Brunner, 32, Tioga, Pa., serving a life term as a fourth offender; Clyde Shakerford, 30, sentenced from Albany County, serving a term of years to life, for murder, second degree.

The attempt to gain freedom occurred about 8 a. m. The group of convicts working in the carpenter shop dropped their work, hurled stones at the guards and broke for the nearest prison wall, stopping only long enough to fire the shot.

Guards on the wall opened fire and almost at the same instant the prison siren wailed its warning of an attempted prison break. Rifle fire from the wall turned back the prisoners, who had attempted to scale it by the human adze method, one climbing on the shoulders of the others.

Three convicts shot dead.

Three dropped to the ground, dead while others staggered back under the rifle fire.

Two guards were injured. They were Phillip Murphy and F. C. Bressette, caught in the first rush of the revolting convicts. Murphy was struck on the head with a stone as the prisoners broke from the carpenter shop.

Bressette was in the yard when the disturbance broke out and was badly beaten before he escaped from the mob which urged around him "Kill the scoundrels!"

The tailor shop, adjoining the carpenter shop, caught fire from the spreading flames and prison officials were powerless to combat the blaze, as the convicts held the prison yard.

State Troopers Came to Aid.

Meanwhile the regular prison guards had been reinforced by every available state trooper and customs border patrolmen. Two companies of the Twenty-sixth United States Infantry arrived from Plattsburg Barracks under command of Col. John F. Madden.

The infantry was held in readiness pending receipt of orders from Washington, but such orders were not issued, the War Department stated, as the request for troops did not come through the proper channels.

To the little village of Dannemora the prison siren carries a poignant message and every man and boy in the village rushed to the prison armed with rifles and pistols. The entire stock of guns in two hardware stores was cleaned out by the excited crowd on its way to the prison.

Clinton Prison, built upon the side of a mountain in the north-eastern section of the Adirondack range, is the disciplinary prison of New York State. In addition to receiving convicts committed from the counties in the northwestern section of the State, the prison is the place to which are transferred the incorrigible inmates of the State prisons at Ossining, Auburn and Great Meadow.

Another class of the prison population is made up of inmates of the other State institutions who are suffering from tuberculosis and have been sent to the Clinton prison hospital.

Because of the disciplinary character, Clinton prison houses the most desperate and unmanageable criminals confined within the limits of the State.

MOUNDS GAMBLING RESORT IS HELD UP BY 5 MASKED MEN

Customers, Including Women, See Robbery—Reports on Loot Run From $3000 to $60,000.

MONEY SCOOPED UP AND PUT IN SACK

Raiding Gunmen Try to Find Some One to Open Safe for Them, but Fail—They Disappear.

By the Associated Press.

The Mounds Country Club, elaborate gambling resort and roadhouse on Collinsville road, in Madison County, Ill., was held up last night by five masked men while some 45 customers, men and women, looked on.

Reports current in gambling circles today placed the loot at various amounts ranging from $20,000 to $60,000, but Harry Murdock, manager and a partner in the enterprise insisted it was only $3000.

According to Murdock, the robbers pulled up to the front door of the club at 7:30 o'clock in an automobile and rushed in with pistols drawn and handkerchiefs tied over their faces. Two of the robbers took charge of the doorman and pushed him on into the dining room on the east side of the building where most of the customers were assembled.

The three others entered the gaming room, to the west, where five or six customers were gathered about the dice and roulette tables. "Everybody keep quiet; this is a stickup," a robber ordered as one of the men moved toward the cashier with a cloth sack.

In the dining room, the orchestra was playing a dance tune and a few dancers were on the floor. "Sit still and don't raise your hands," was the order there. The dancers stopped in their tracks and the music faded away as the musicians dropped playing and fled.

Taylor announced his company was buying a controlling stock interest in an investment. He said the stock was acquired from T. W. Vardell and T. L. Bradford, principal officers of the Southwestern Life.

The transaction was ratified last week by Missouri State Life directors. It is understood the company was valued at $15,000,000 and control was obtained for about half that sum.

Operating exclusively in Texas, the Southwestern Life has been prosperous. It has $270,000,000 of insurance in force; $2,000,000 capital and $2,000,000 surplus. Its stock has been closely held.

The Southwestern Life represents another link in the insurance chain of Rogers Caldwell, investment banker of Nashville, Tenn. Caldwell purchased control of the Missouri State Life from M. E. Singleton and associates for $14,000,000 in 1926 and also obtained control of the Inter-Southern, North American and Cotton States insurance companies, as well as the assets of the defunct International Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis.

DALLAS, Tex., July 22.—T. W. There will be no change in the business policies or management of Southwestern Life if the deal is consummated, he said.

FLAW IN "JAY-WALKING" ORDINANCE DISCOVERED

Counselor Muench Finds That It Applies Only to North and South Streets.

A flaw in the new "jay-walking" ordinance, which would make it inoperative so far as crossing between intersections on east-and-west streets is concerned, was discovered today by City Counselor Muench.

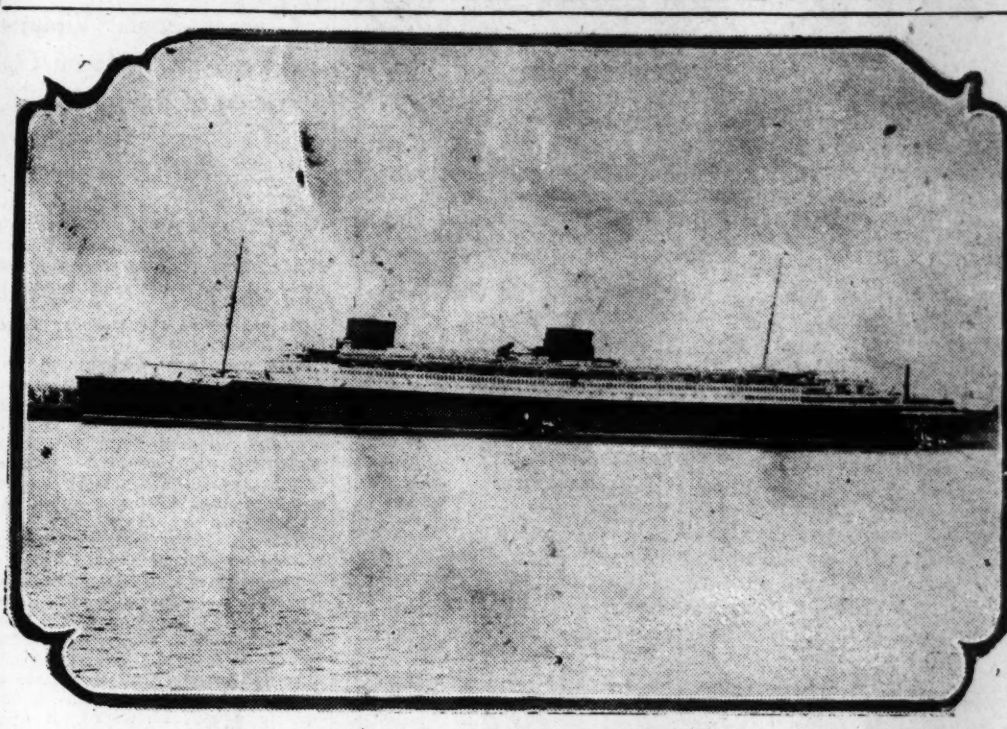

The ordinance, as drafted by Alderman Waldman, names individually the north-and-south streets between Fourth street and Twelfth boulevard, but does not designate the east-and-west streets.

Wherefore, Muench ruled, the ordinance will apply only to north-and-south streets when it becomes effective Aug. 9 for a 90-day trial period with the exception of the open clause which requires pedestrians to obey the signals of traffic officers at all intersections. This clause will apply at all intersections.

New German Liner Cuts Atlantic Record 8 Hours

Purchases Control of the Southwestern Insurance Co., of Dallas, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The new German liner Bremen reached Ambrose Light at the entrance to New York harbor at 3:02 p. m. this afternoon, easily breaking the speed record for ocean crossings held by the Mauretania. The Bremen's time from Cherbourg on its maiden voyage was 4 days, 18 hours and 17 minutes, which beat the Mauretania's time by 8 hours and 17 minutes.

Ambrose Light is 22 miles from New York. The Bremen is expected to dock at her pier in Brooklyn late this afternoon.

Among the notables on the Bremen is Capt. Paul Koenig, who in 1916 brought the large German submarine, with a valuable cargo in his hold, to the United States, landing at Baltimore. He is now an executive of the North German Lloyd.

A radio from the ship to the line's offices here said that from noon yesterday to noon today the ship logged 713 nautical miles, breaking the record she herself had set the day before of 705 miles. She had maintained an average speed of 29.5 knots, also a new record.

Plans were made for a welcome to the new champion by the city's official Reception Committee. The municipal tug, Macon, is to carry the committee to quarantine, where its members will board the vessel. The Macon and a fleet of tugs will then escort the ship to her pier.

The seaplane New York, carrying a cargo of express mail, landed in the bay at 1:35 p. m. today. It had been catapulted from the top deck of the Bremen while the liner was still at sea.

Except for occasional fog patches the weather on the trip has been perfect. The passengers were treated to a superb bit of seamanship yesterday when Capt. Leopold Ziegenbein steered between two channels of the Gulf stream, avoiding the usual retarding currents, messages from the vessel reported.

There has been the greatest amount of gaiety on board, in anticipation of the ship's setting a new record, and one impromptu celebration has followed another. The fun reached a new climax with discovery of the inevitable stow-away. The distinction of this particular stow-away is his age, which is about 50, and his luxuriant growth of whiskers.

There was a storm Saturday night, but it was not of sufficient duration to raise a heavy sea. The comfort of the ship while traveling at high speed has been an agreeable surprise to everyone. There has been practically no vibration.

Manchurian Governor Re-

but Says Nationalists Acted on Defensive.

By the Associated Press.
NANKING, July 22.—The Nationalist Foreign Office is reported to have sent another note to Soviet Russia reiterating the desire of the Chinese Government for settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute by peaceful negotiation.

It was reported also that the Nationalist Government sent separate notes to the signatories of the Kellogg pact, stating that China had no intention of beginning a war with Russia, but wished merely to defend its rights.

The notes were understood to charge that the Soviet Government had assumed the offensive on the Chinese border, thus violating the spirit of the Kellogg pact.

Foreign Minister C. T. Wang tonight said: "China will appeal to the League of Nations in connection with the Russian crisis if the Soviet isolates the spirit of the Kellogg pact."

It was further surmised that the Nationalists would express the hope in the note that Moscow would see fit to send a plenipotentiary to Harbin to discuss the situation with a similar plenipotentiary from China.

Chu Shao Min, Chinese charge d'affaires at Moscow, who is now in Nanking, was understood to be leaving immediately for Harbin in the hope that Russia would agree to send a representative. The Government was ready to send him on to Moscow if necessary in order to hold the conversations.

Sun Fo, Minister of Railways, left Nanking for Peking, and it was understood he planned to go to Harbin in connection with affairs of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The Government also planned to send Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany and Japan identical notes explaining the Chinese side of the dispute.

The Kuo Min News Agency, Na-

"Before organization of the com-

Government will seek to use its in-concentrated along the Manchurian border. In view of the conflicting reports of actual conditions along the Chinese-Siberian border, Amer-in reply to the Secretary's action in calling to the attention of the Chinese Government its obligations as a signatory power to the anti-war treaty.

Stimson conferred twice today with French Ambassador Claudel and also with Japanese Ambassador Debutchi.

Stimson was advised by Claudel that he had been informed the Soviet if possible would abide by the Kellogg pact. Stimson's appeal to Russia to be mindful of the Kellogg pact was made through the French Ambassador to whom, consequently the reply was made by Moscow.

Absence of any official confirmation of overt acts by either China or the Soviet in Manchuria caused Secretary Stimson to express optimism today over the situation. He said the American diplomatic representative in China had cautioned the department regarding the rumors which might emanate from various points concerning outbreaks of hostilities and added that no official word of any overt act on either side has been received.

The Secretary declared it was his experience that rumors in the Far East were more prevalent than in any other part of the world, since there was not the same means of confirming them.
Secretary Stimson announced late today that Japanese Ambassador Debutchi had informed him on instructions from Tokyo that Barron Shidharu, the Foreign Minister, was fully co-operating in the peace movement to avert hostilities in Manchuria.

MANIFESTO ISSUED BY CHINA BLAMES RUSSIA FOR BREAK

Nanking Government
Charges Soviet Violated Agreement Made on Operation of Railroad.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 22.—A manifesto issued by the Chinese Nationalist Government yesterday said that in view of Communist propaganda undermining the Government, it had been constrained to adopt measures of self-defense with regard to the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The manifesto was drawn up and signed by the Presidents of the five Yuans and made public. It declared the Soviet Government, disregarding the consequences, had adopted warlike preparations, thereby violating the spirit of the anti-war pact to which it was signatory.

The manifesto addressed to all foreign governments said in part:
"During 1919 and 1920, the new Russian Government repeatedly published declarations of friendliness toward the Chinese people and Government, which the latter, in accordance with their principle of universal brotherhood and peace, readily accepted with an open

Rail Treaty Signed.

"Hence the China-Russia agreement of 1924 (which among other things regulated operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria) was signed. Since then our Government and people have never failed to treat the Russian Government and people with reciprocity and in a spirit of mutual assistance."

"However, in 1927, there were discovered throughout China representatives of the Soviet Communist propaganda schemes planned and directed by the Soviet Embassy and Soviet Consulates, secretly plotting against the Chinese Government and for the destruction of Chinese society."

"For this reason, the Chinese Government was constrained to withdraw its recognition of Soviet diplomatic and consular representatives in China and to suspend various commercial organizations of the Soviet Union in order to prevent a sudden uprising of Communists and in hope that Soviet Russia would awake to the misadventures and return to proper diplomatic relations with China."

"On May 27 Communist leaders in Manchuria held a meeting to spread the program of Communism and the Third Internationale at the Soviet Consulate in Harbin, during the raid on which documents relating to secret plottings for destruction of the unification of China, organization of an assassin corps for Nanking, Manchuria and other important centers as well as the organization of a secret army for the destruction of the Chinese Eastern Railway were seized, together with Russian propaganda designed to prolong internal strife in China."

Diplomats Arrested.

"Most of the culprits arrested were members of the staffs of the Chinese Eastern Railway Workers, the Soviet Far Eastern Petroleum Syndicate and other Soviet commercial organizations in the Far East."

"To exterminate the sources of trouble, the local Manchurian authorities . . . were forced to take appropriate steps to seal the above mentioned Soviet organizations."

"Unfortunately the government to the facts of the case, at the
of the Soviet Union failed to awake to its mistakes, and on July 13 presented conditions contrary to the facts of the case, a t the same time demanding a reply within a specified time limit."

"The Chinese Government . . . sent a reply . . . expressing the hope that various questions outstanding between China and Soviet Russia would be amicably settled by negotiation."

"A second note from the Soviet Government further complicated this situation by announcing, firstly, withdrawal of Soviet diplomatic, consular and other commercial representatives from China; secondly, recall of all Soviet officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway; thirdly, suspension of railway communication between Russia and China; and fourthly, immediate departure from Soviet Russia of all Chinese Diplomatic and consular officials."

"The entire text of this communication contains nothing but suspicious phrases designed to mislead the whole world, no reference being made to China's proposal to dispatch representatives for negotiations on the various issues as outlined in the national Government reply on July 16."

"This is sufficient proof of the evasion of Soviet Russia in its international dealings as well as in its aggressive aspirations toward China. The Soviet Government's violation of the agreement is thus completely exposed."

"Having discovered the Soviet Government's illegal utilization of the railway and Soviet consulates for the purpose of instigating internal strife in China and other organized methods of destruction, the Chinese Government resolutely adopted appropriate measures to clear up the railway situation."

Evidence Made Public.
"Various documentary evidence discovered at the Soviet consulate in Harbin therefore is published for the information of friendly powers so that they may judge for themselves of the merits of the

WHAT a bitter disappointment the evening

Allen had been politeness itself. But somehow, Janet knew she hadn't made a good

Whose fault? Janet didn't know then. But there's no "B.O."—no body odor robbing her of popularity now. Let her tell you what she learned about this treacherous fault and the easy way to end it by keeping perspiration odorless.

Hotter weather—yet no "B.O."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
Hammer and Shelton Tell
Of Their Five Days in Air

W. GENTRY SHELTON JR., and JOSEPH HAMMER photographed after landing today.

Joe a "Swell Pilot but Bum Housekeeper," Gentry "Ate Up All the Groceries,"
They Declare.

Joe Hammer is a "swell pilot, but a bum housekeeper," and Gentry Shelton "ate up all the groceries," the two endurance pilots of the Missouri Robin, forced down by a loose oil connection this morning, declared in appraising each other after the most intimate observation over a period of nearly five days.

Shelton, his once white trousers torn at the seat and soaked with oil, and Hammer, equally oil-stained, laughed and kidded each other for the amusement of their friends as they ate ham and eggs and bacon and eggs respectively at Louie's Place, while Mrs. Hammer and Miss Hammer's pet bulldog, looked on.

"If I ate up everything in sight why did I lose 10 pounds and you lost only three?" Shelton demanded of the stocky Joe. Upon being weighed after landing, this morning, Shelton's weight was 155 pounds and Hammer's 150. Shelton weighed 165 last Wednesday when the flight started and Hammer 153.

Prattle for Plane and Engine.

"He not only ate everything sent up, but drank up all the milk and coffee as well," Hammer insisted. "I would shout for a drink and that booze would shake the thermos jug and his head at the same time, meaning both were empty, I guess."

Both pilots praised their plane and the engine, but had uncompimentary comments to make concerning some of the accessories. "All I did for five days was pump, pump, pump," Shelton declared. "They call the thing that is supposed to transfer the gasoline from the main tank to the wing tanks a wobble pump. It sure was wobbly. It's a little old thing and I battled that baby without end. I'll be glad to get into my car and take a little without having to contend with a wobble pump."

Shelton, who is nearly six feet tall, had difficulty in moving around in the cramped cabin of the plane. "Everytime I crawled from the cockpit to the front my pants came off, or were torn," he declared. "I was forever getting caught on the ends of bolts and other things. Then this mornettes, and newspapers, telegrams and letters to the endurance crew. "About Two Weeks Early."

A note from Chaffee to the flyers, addressed to Red and O'Brien, read: "Well, boys, the world is awakening to the fact that you fellows are really doing something up there. The International, Paramount and several other newsmen are here to stick around until you come down to the ground. We told them they were about two weeks early, that you had just got started."

"I suppose you will stick around pretty close from now on to be sure and allow no one to start any false rumors, now that the old barograph has stopped. The crowds on the ground get quite a kick out of watching the refueling and I suppose that, starting tomorrow, we will be going round and round the field. Well, be sure and let us know of your wants and we will be on the job, because we really have to hand it to you. Yours, Shorty."

Jackson's parents and friends in his home town, Fairbault, Minn., are "pulling" for him to set a new record, as is evidenced by the following telegram, received today, signed "Pa, Ma and the whole town."

"Stay with it, Red. The whole town is with you. Remember, Minnesota birds that fly from St. Louis always win. Lindbergh did so and so will you. World records are bound to fall before Fairbault's 'Red Hot'."

NEW SUIT AGAINST
TUNNEY BLAMES
HIM FOR DIVORCE

Former Husband of Mrs.
Katherine King Fogarty Attaches Property and Seeks $500,000.

By the Associated Press.
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 22.—The formal complaint in the $500,000 alienation of affections suit brought by John S. Fogarty of Port Worth, Tex., now temporarily residing in Connecticut, against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, was filed in Superior Court today. Copies of the writ were left with Peter Johnson, caretaker of Tunney's property at Stamford.

Fogarty alleges that Tunney stole the affections of his wife, Katherine King Fogarty while she was legally his wife. He declares that Tunney became friendly and intimate with Mrs. Fogarty in February, 1925, before she was divorced. On several occasions thereafter, specifically naming St. Paul, Chicago, New York and Miami, Fogarty alleges that Tunney appeared in public with Mrs. Fogarty as his wife. Fogarty further says Tunney induced his wife to get a divorce, promising he would marry her.

Papers of attachment were served on Tunney's caretaker Saturday at his estate in Stamford. A suit for $500,000 is now pending against Tunney, filed by Mrs. Fogarty, alleging breach of promise. Both suits are returnable at the September term of the Superior Court.

Tunney, in his reply to Mrs. Fogarty's action, declared he had paid her $35,000 to sign a waiver of claims on him and charged she was seeking publicity and financial gain through her suit.

being lowered from the refueling plane, struck it. Patching materials were sent up to the flyers and O'Brien repaired the tear. His shirt was nearly ripped from his back by the velocity of the air while completing the job and he sent down an order for a new shirt.

Both crews had a trout supper yesterday. The fish were caught in the Ozarks by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, official observer of the flight. Last week this was the first fish supper ever served in an airplane.

Letters and telegrams for the flyers continue to arrive at the field and are sent aloft in the refueling ships. The flyers received a dozen boxes of candy Saturday. The wives of the pilots, who prepare their meals, are daily visitors at the field and have gone up several times to wave greetings to their husbands. At least one of the flyers, Jackson, has no intention of capitalizing whatever fame he attains on the stage, according to his young wife, Sally. The place for an aviator is in an airplane, not before the footlights, she says.

Commercial flying companies reported the biggest day in their careers yesterday. The Universal Aviation Corporation carried more than 500 sightseers over the city during the day, using all available equipment.

A motor truck run is being made from Tulsa, Ok., by the oil company supplying fuel to the St. Louis Robin. A tank car containing a supply of gasoline for the plane was delayed because of a wreck and the truck was dispatched to St. Louis last night. The truck is manned by two drivers, who relieve each other, and is expected here today. The distance is approximately 450 miles.

Sketches of Aviators.

Jackson, known to his friends as "Red," is 23 years old. He learned to fly at Lambert Field and was an instructor for the Von Hoffmann Flying School before becoming demonstration pilot for Curtiss Flying Service. He established a record of 417 barrel rolls in a Robin monoplane last year. O'Brien, who is 33 years old, was an instructor at the Nicholas Beazley Flying School at Marshall, Mo., before becoming a member of the staff of the Universal Flying School here last year. He became test pilot for the Curtiss-Robinson Co. several months ago and, in a note dropped during the present flight, described himself as "the worst flyer in the Curtiss service."

Shelton, 34 years old, took up flying as a sport five years ago. His previous aeronautical accomplishment was a parachute jump to win a bet of $100. He made the jump, but broke an ankle in landing. Hammer, 25 years old, is a pilot on the Chicago-Atlanta air mail route and obtained a furlough the largest crowd since the 1923 air races to Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday afternoon. Estimates of the attendance varied from 20,000 persons upward. Automobiles moved at a snail's pace along Natural Bridge and Bridge-ton Station roads, and spectators jammed every available space on the west side of the field. Special motor busses were operated from Wellston to the airport, beginning at noon, and Boy Scouts and Deputy Sheriffs assisted field officials in handling the throng.

Both endurance crews accommodated the crowd by remaining near the field during the greater part of the afternoon. The St. Louis Robin made a brief excursion to Jefferson Barracks, where Jackson and O'Brien dropped a message of greeting to the 1600 C. M. T. C. students encamped there. They then returned to the vicinity of the airport and made a refueling contact for the entertainment of the spectators. Jackson had assured C. Ray Wassall, pilot of the refueling plane, that he would "stick with you, even if you start a loop," and the exhibition contact was one of the best of the flight.

In a note dropped yesterday morning O'Brien announced that he was giving Jackson "a day off." "I slept for six hours straight through, and feel fine, so will give Red the day off. We sure get a kick out of the telegrams and letters, most of them from out of town. We are wondering if St. Louis knows what is going on here. Somebody tell 'em."

15-YEAR-OLD BOY
KILLED ON TRESTLE

Vernon Massie Hit by Frisco
Train — His Cousin, Elroy
Travis, Runs and Leaps to Safety.

Vernon Massie, 15-year-old Roosevelt High School student, was killed when struck by a Frisco train on a trestle at Valley Park at noon yesterday.

Vernon, his widowed mother, his cousin, Elroy Travis, 15, also a Roosevelt High School pupil, and Elroy's parents, all living at 4843 Scanlan avenue, were visiting at the Meramec River clubhouse of Edwin Hopkins, 3319 Chippewa street.

Vernon and I were on the west side of the river and took a short cut over the Frisco bridge to see a racing hydroplane on the other side," Elroy related.

"When we were about half way over I heard the train whistling and saw smoke around a bend. The train was going into St. Louis and we were walking on the west-bound tracks. We could have stayed there and let the train pass us, but I was afraid we might get scared and fall off, so I shouted to Vernon: 'Follow me,' and started to run ahead."

"I beat the train to the end of the trestle and leaped off, but the train was whistling all the time and Vernon got excited and turned the wrong way, in front of the train."

Vernon suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

to make the endurance attempt. He says he built airplanes and tried to fly them before the World War. In 1917-18 he was a flying instructor in the navy, later becoming a barnstorming pilot. He instructed in local flying schools and for a year was pilot for Anheuser-Busch, Inc., touring the country in a Ryan monoplane advertising the products of that concern. Air Board to Act as Clearing House

The Chamber of Commerce Air Board will act as a clearing house for gifts and subscriptions for Jackson and O'Brien, it announced today. The Air Board has arranged a luncheon for the flyers at which gold watches will be presented to them.

The announcement states that the flight illustrates the ideal flying weather prevailing around St. Louis, a point the Air Board will press home in its arguments before the Interdepartmental Committee on Airways for a direct air line from the East to St. Louis and the Southwest.

If the men break the record, the Municipal Theater Association will present each with $1 for every hour spent in the air, former Mayor Kiel, president of the association, announced today. The presentation will be made during a performance in the open air theater. "St. Louis is getting a lot of advertising through the flight," Kiel said, "and the Municipal Theater Association wants to show its appreciation of the feat."

J. F. Louis Buchka and Son
Questioned After George Jarand Is Wounded at Riverview Gardens.

George Jarand, 36 years old, a helpless imbecile, was slashed on the neck and left hand early today as he slept in his room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Louis Buchka, 97 Midridge avenue, Riverview Gardens, St. Louis County.

With Jarand in serious condition at the Missouri Baptist Hospital, St. Louis police began an investigation, detaining Buchka, a retired hardware dealer, and his son, J. F. Louis Buchka Jr., a clerk. The Buchkas ventured the opinion that the assailant entered the room through a window and, after passing the window screen and the knife, both of which are missing.

Jarand had been boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Buchka since July 1, when his legal guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Venz, 4547 San Francisco avenue, departed on a vacation in California. According to Buchka, Jarand owns a valuable estate, worth $200,000 or more, which he inherited from his parents. Jarand's father, Charles Jarand, who died 15 years ago, was the brother of Mrs. Venz and Mrs. Buchka.

Jarand, police were told, was assigned to a room on the first floor of the Buchka home adjoining the room of Louis Buchka Jr., who acted as his custodian. Last night young Buchka bathed the invalid and helped him to bed, before retiring himself.

According to the Buchkas, the family was aroused shortly after 3 a. m. by moans from Jarand's room. The father and mother ran down from the second floor and the son hurried to the invalid's bedroom.

Jarand, they said, was lying helpless in his bed with blood pouring from his wounds. The cuts on his hand indicated that he had seized the blade of the knife. There were bloodstains on the window sill and the screen, which the Buchkas said had been hooked from the inside, could not be found.

Dr. A. T. Vogler, 4244 West Florissant avenue, who has attended Jarand since birth, was summoned to the Buchka home where he took emergency measures and ordered Jarand to the hospital. Later he telephoned the police and asked them to investigate.

The Buchkas were questioned at Deer Street Station by Detective-Sergeant Teeters.

Dr. Vogler said he expected Jarand would recover.

Battered, But Unopened.

Bonds valued at $8000 were taken from a vault on the second floor of the Silverstone Furniture Co., 1114 Olive street, between closing time Saturday and yesterday morning. Mark Silverstone, president, told police today.

Entrance was gained by forcing a window on the second floor. The doors of the vault had been left open and the robber had battered the compartments. Compartments of a safe on the first floor had been similarly battered without success.

The bonds, property of Silverstone, were listed as follows: Five $1000 bonds of the Southern Realty Co., Dallas, Tex.; two $1000 municipal bonds of North St. Louis, Mo.; and two $500 municipal bonds of Haynesville, Ark.

Watchman Says Door Swung to While He Was on Rounds.

Answering a call at 12:30 p. m. yesterday that there was "something wrong" at the Northwestern Bank, 1500 St. Louis avenue, police found that a man was locked in the basement of the bank.

After summoning the custodian of the building, Patrolman McEnany obtained entrance to the basement and released Private Watchman William Wingman of 1419 Arlington avenue, who explained that the basement door automatically locked after him when he entered at 3 a. m. yesterday on his inspection round.

AMERICAN ARRAIGNED IN LONDON AUTO DEATH

R. J. Reynolds, Alleged Drunken Driver, Enters Plea of Not Guilty.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 22.—Richard Joshua Reynolds, 23 years old, described as an American living in London, appeared at Old Bailey today and pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Arthur Graham, who died at Windsor on May 17, after an automobile accident.

Sir Henry Maddock, the prosecutor, said Graham was found in the roadway unconscious beneath a crumpled up motor cycle on May 14, on the same day that Reynolds had hired an automobile with a friend named Bargate to play golf. Bargate had since stated his recollection was hazy as to what happened and the jury might come to the conclusion he was drunk.

At Chiswick a motorist saw the car zigzagging about the road. Sir Henry said. He followed it for two miles, after which it was stopped. Bargate was in the back of the car, the motorist said, and Reynolds fell down in trying to get out, but died being drunk. At the police station, however, Sir Henry said, doctors pronounced Reynolds drunk and unfit to drive. When charged with manslaughter, Reynolds said: "I must have been drunk."

The case was adjourned until tomorrow after a brief examination of Bargate Reynolds was admitted to bail.

Reynolds the Son of the North Carolina Tobacco Man.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 22.—Richard Joshua Reynolds, on trial in London on a charge of manslaughter, is a son of the late R. J. Reynolds tobacco Co. It was stated here today.

Young Reynolds is one of the largest stockholders in the tobacco firm and of recent years has been interested in aviation.

When Reynolds was first arrested in England none of his friends or relatives would say whether or not the accused man was the son of the late tobacco magnate.

Reynolds about two years ago created a furor throughout the country by disappearing for several days. He was found in St. Louis where he had gone with a friend on a "vacation."

WASHINGTON, July 22.—President Hoover returned to Washington today where he had spent the week-end.

2,000,000TH MODEL A FORD TO BE FINISHED WEDNESDAY

Thirteen Months Required to Build First Million, Seven Months for Second.

DETROIT, Mich., July 22.—Ford Model A No. 2,000,000 will be completed Wednesday. The first model A car was built Dec. 31, 1927. The millionth car of this type was built Feb. 4, 1928. Only six months and 20 days later, in just half the time, the second million has been completed.

"We are going to build the next million cars in less than six months time," Henry Ford said. "And as we build the Model A cars we will improve them. We must eliminate noise. The more silent the automobile today the better it is. Noise means that there is a greater waste going on than there should be. There will be a noiseless car built some day."

FIRST VACATION IN 40 YEARS

Mexico (Mo.) School Caretaker Had Been "Too Busy."

MEXICO, Mo., July 22.—After being "too busy to take a vacation for two score years," Hugh Donnelly left Sunday to visit his son, Francis Donnelly, at North Platte, Neb.

He has for years been caretaker of the Mexico public school buildings.

URGES ELEVATORS FOR AGED INMATES AT CITY INFIRMARY

Commissioner Lohr Says in Two Buildings Some of Patients Are Virtually in Big Tomb.

NEW ADDITIONS BADLY NEEDED

Structure 65 Years Old Should Be Modernized—Changes in Kitchen Are Suggested.

The City Infirmary, which during past years has been transformed from an ordinary "poor house" for public charges to a hospital for the aged and infirm, is now filled almost to capacity and must have extensive additions if it is to take care of the ever-increasing demand for admission, according to Hospital Commissioner Lohr.

Two additional wings for men and women patients, respectively, and an employees' building are recommended, as well as numerous improvements for the comfort and health of the inmates, now numbering about 800.

"The most urgent need is for additional elevators," Dr. Lohr said in his annual institutional report issued last week. "At present the C and E buildings are without elevators. Because of the lack of elevators, several hundred of these unfortunates have not been able to attend any of the entertainments for many years. It might be said that these patients are housed in a big tomb."

Buildings 65 Years Old.

"Most of the buildings at the Infirmary are 65 years old and very little repair work has been done in the last 10 years. The entire group is badly in need of tuckpointing. All of the windows should be weather-stripped and caulked. The slate roof is in poor repair and the wooden cornice and its wooden ornaments are coming loose and constitute a real danger. Plumbing is in poor condition and the heating system is antiquated.

The grounds surrounding the City Infirmary are second to none in beauty and orderliness. This only criticism which may be applied to the grounds concerns the poor condition of the roads and particularly the old, worn-out brick walks. The latter are really dangerous to the feeble inmates who totter along on them as well as they can, sometimes with the aid of a cane or a pair of crutches."

Iceboxes Antiquated.

Describing the Infirmary kitchen as "spotless and very efficiently operated," Dr. Lohr criticized the equipment severely. "The iceboxes are of the antiquated type, cooled by blocks of ice placed in a top compartment," he said. "They are difficult to keep clean and very seldom register the desired low temperature. Consequently there is a constant danger of deteriorating changes in the meat supply and other perishables." His recommendations call for entirely new equipment and a new service building to replace the 65-year-old building now in use.

The report calls attention to the fact that the entertainment hall and chapel are being enlarged in order to accommodate the entire population of the Infirmary; that only 68 employees take care of the 800 patients, many of whom are helpless, and that the Infirmary cook has "rendered efficient and loyal services for 35 years." However, the employment of a dietitian to supervise the meals of invalids is recommended.

Three-Fourth Disabled.

In his individual report, Dr. Charles E. Baur, Infirmary Superintendent, related that three-fourths of the inmates are unable to assist in the institution's work, being either crippled or bedridden.

Women patients who are able to work aid in sewing, mending, dishwashing, dining room work and preparing vegetables. Men patients carry food to the dining rooms, cut grass, sweep, scrub, carry garbage, mend broken furniture, make lawn chairs, bird houses, flower boxes, trolleys, repair shoes and mend clothing.

The daily average number of patients during the year ended April 15 was 781; the cost of operation $157,628.90; the per capita daily cost 55 cents and the death rate 16.73 per cent.

He Recommends Crematory.

A crematory to replace the City Cemetery or "Potter's Field," which adjoins the Infirmary is urgently recommended by Commissioner Lohr. "Under existing conditions it is absolutely impossible to manage the cemetery creditably for there is no one available to look after the grass, the shrubs, or to make the slightest attempt to beautify the last resting place of our paupers," his report said.

"The cemetery under present conditions is a discredit to the City of St. Louis and does not come anywhere near fulfilling even the meager responsibility which the city owes its paupers."

PIN AND YARD OF CLOTH TAKEN FROM WOMAN'S THROAT

Mrs. Mary Blais of Springfield, Mo., Recovering Following Delicate Operation.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 22.—An open safety pin and a piece of cloth a yard long and eight inches wide today was removed from the esophagus of Mrs. Mary Blais, 30-year-old Springfield woman, at St. John's Hospital yesterday.

The pin had lodged upside down halfway between the woman's throat and the stomach, the cloth to which it had been pinned packing down tightly above it, and out without danger of tearing the throat. Mrs. Blais was recovering nicely this afternoon.

How the pin and cloth were swallowed last night at Mrs. Blais's home is something of a mystery.

Mrs. Blais was under the influence of an anesthetic more than an hour while Dr. Cheek and an assistant worked to remove the obstruction. A long tube one-quarter of an inch in diameter to the end of it, was inserted through the throat, and through this the surgeon worked. After the wad of cloth was removed, Dr. Cheek found the point of the pin. He freed it from the walls of the esophagus and got it inside the tube. The pin then could be pulled

HOYT CRASHES RETURNING FROM ALASKA; UNHURT

Army Captain's Plane Is Wrecked Near Valemount
B. C., on Third Leg of Homeward Trip.

By the Associated Press.
EDMONTON, Alberta, July 22.—Capt. Ross G. Hoyt's attempted flight from New York to Nome, Alaska, and return, has ended in a crash near Valemount, B. C. He was on his way here from Whitehorse, Yukon, on the third leg of his homeward trip, yesterday.

The United States army flyer escaped injured, but his Curtiss Hawk pursuit plane was wrecked. Hoyt had been expected to arrive at Mitchell Field, N. Y., today, if he maintained his pace. He had fought wind and rain since Thursday with almost no sleep and had covered nearly 6000 miles. He left Mitchell Field at 2:38 p. m., New York time, Thursday.

Bad weather in Alberta forced him down. He lost 12 hours on the northward flight and tried to make up lost time. A message sent from Fairbanks, Alaska, told of a "tough trip" to Nome and return, with rain and low clouds the entire distance. From Fairbanks, Hoyt flew back to White Horse, a distance of 500 miles. He took off again at 11 a. m. yesterday, Yukon time, hoping to cover the 1100 miles to Edmonton and the 1100 miles more to Minneapolis, Minn., by this morning. From Minneapolis he would have had a flight of 1025 miles to New York.

News of the crash was received at Alberta, 10 miles from Valemount, in a telephone message from the Captain. Alberta is on the main line of the Canadian National Railways, near the Alberta boundary. As understood here, water in the plane's fuel caused Hoyt to come down. He was sighted heading west at Jackman, B. C., at 7 p. m., and at Blue River, B. C., half an hour afterward. Later he was heading east, apparently in trouble and looking for a landing place. The plane, damaged beyond repair, will be shipped to Mitchell Field.

PLANE STRANDED IN HARBOR

Three Men Rescued From Submerged Amphibian at Buffalo.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 22.—Pilot L. N. Little and two mechanics of a giant amphibian plane in the Buffalo-Toronto service, were taken off the plane unhurt by a police boat this morning after the craft had grounded in Buffalo harbor and half submerged.

The big Sikorsky, belonging to Colonial Western Airways, had just landed and was sailing to the landing stage to take on passengers for the Toronto trip. Another plane was put on in place of the stranded ship. The Sikorsky was not badly damaged.

FIVE DISTILLERIES TO BE ALLOWED TO OPERATE

These Will Make 2,000,000 Gallons of Medical Whisky.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Five or six distilleries will receive permission from the Prohibition Bureau soon to resume production of whisky in the United States to replenish medicinal supplies.

In making that announcement, Commissioner Dornan said the nation's Government-guarded supply of medicinal whisky had dwindled under the eighteenth amendment to 9,549,071 gallons.

About 1,500,000 gallons are withdrawn from this stock each year and, taking probable evaporation into consideration, this total is considered sufficient to meet legal requirements for five years.

About 2,000,000 gallons, the commissioner announced, will be produced next year so that the requirement for five-year supply can be complied with and, allowing for evaporation of 400,000 gallons, provide a full year's supply in storage in 1934.

To produce 2,000,000 gallons, the distilleries will resume operation under Government supervision and will be allowed to produce 1,400,000 gallons of bourbon and 600,000 gallons of rye whisky next year. It is estimated that about one year's supply will be on hand when the new stock is ready for sale.

The commissioner said recent suggestions that large amounts of the present supply are of questionable quality have little foundation. Not more than 1000 of the 300,000 barrels in the bonded warehouses, he says, can be classed as questionable.

KELLOGG THINKS TREATY WILL PREVENT SINO-SOVIET WAR

Former Secretary of State Says Pact Is Morally Binding; Upholds Stimson.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, declared last night that the anti-war treaty which bears his name would have a moral effect in preventing a conflict between China and Russia, both signatories of the pact.

"I don't think there will be any war," he added.

Kellogg expressed the view that both nations recognized the treaty as morally binding even though it does not become effective until Japan's deposition of her ratification with the State Department next Wednesday. He said that Secretary Stimson's admonition to the two countries to recognize their responsibilities under the treaty was "entirely proper."

The dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway was a question "very susceptible to pacific settlement" in the opinion of Kellogg. He said that it could be settled either by diplomatic negotiations or, if the latter failed, through arbitration.

"To Blazes With Out-of-Date Radio Sets!"

Let's Buy a New One!

YOU'VE said that about your old set, when a shrill whistle or a howling wolf interrupted a tenor solo—or when a dead battery kept you from hearing the game. If you own one of the old model "Bloopers" regenerative sets that will not let you or your neighbors enjoy good radio, help clear the air by trading it in now. Radio dealers in St. Louis will allow you a reasonable amount on the purchase of a new set (one without batteries, that doesn't whistle or howl) if you act now. On August 3, every regenerative type radio we can get our hands on, including the one you trade in, will be burned in a great bonfire at Forest Park. Trade your set in now before it's too late to realize a trade-in allowance on it.

There Is No Closed Season on Radio Entertainment

The Summer radio programs are just as enjoyable as those at any other season of the year. Broadcasters offer you Summer programs that are the last word in timely information and thorough enjoyment. Now is the opportune time to have your radio installed. Further delay only deprives you of the many enjoyable programs that are being broadcast every day. Dealers are better able to give you service at this time of the year. There is no reason why you should not start to enjoy your radio immediately.

*BLOOPER—meaning the old type set which contained regeneration in its circuit, which, when tuned, transmitted squealing signals to other nearby sets.

FT. WORTH JOINS CITY IN AIRMAIL FIGHT

Preparing Data to Aid in Demand for Direct Route to New York.

Fort Worth has joined the cities preparing data to present to the Interdepartmental Committee on Airways at a hearing Aug. 1 at Washington on the demand initiated by St. Louis for direct air mail service to New York.

St. Louis' air mail connection with New York now is over a zig-zag route through Chicago, nearly 300 miles off course, and the Great Lakes storm area. The route has many costly delays.

Many Southwestern cities similarly are without adequate air mail service. Fort Worth is the latest to pledge its support to the fight for a direct line. Dallas, Tulsa, Oklahoma City and others in the Southwest, and Columbus, Indianapolis and Pittsburgh in the East, have joined in the movement.

"Preparing data for presentation," J. H. Hott, manager of the Fort Worth Association of Commerce, wired the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. "Anxious to co-operate and work hand in hand with you and would appreciate outline of plans."

Each of the cities now is preparing its case for inclusion on the line. Voluminous data has been gathered in St. Louis by the chamber's research department. It is being analyzed this week and formulated for presentation at the hearing.

Civic and commercial organizations, as well as business and financial institutions, are being urged by the chamber to send representatives. The Board of Aldermen has approved the sending of a delegation of five, to represent the city, including President Neun of the board, Aldermen Niederlueke, Hirth and Stult, and Assistant Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham.

By the Associated Press.
 CHICAGO, July 22.—Miss Hilda Schaefer, 21 years old, was killed last night; Jens P. Jensen, 30 years old, pilot, was fatally injured; and Miss Pauline Taylor suffered serious injuries when their airplane fell near Melrose Park, Western suburb. Jensen is at a hospital.

Witnesses said Jensen had made an exhibition flight in the afternoon and had taken the two women on for a pleasure flight. He was stunt flying, according to spectators, when the crash occurred, the ship appearing to go into a nose dive at a height of 500 feet.

By the Associated Press.
 NORTH PLATTE, Neb., July 22. Henry Oldham of North Platte, pilot for the Mid-West Aviation Corporation, and Mike Ryan of this city were fatally injured in an airplane crash near the North Platte Municipal Airport yesterday. Ryan was receiving flying instructions from Oldham. They had been in the air an hour and were about to land. The plane was owned by Ryan.

Three men were slightly burned and damage estimated at $17,000 was caused by a fire at the Pockels Drug, Glass & Paint Co., 2344 Gravois avenue, yesterday afternoon.

A can of wax, being heated by Sidney Pockels, caught fire, burned his hands and spread to the stock. Two city firemen, Thomas L. Fitzgerald and Charles Weber, were burned by crowsots in fighting the flames. They were treated at Alexian Brothers Hospital and City Hospital.

Three families, residing on the second and third floors of the building, fled to the street. Damage to the stock and building was estimated at $10,000 and $7000, respectively.

KILLED WHEN WRENCH TOUCHES 33,000-VOLT ELECTRIC WIRE

John Adams of Duquoin Falls 30 Feet From Pole in Belleville, Fracturing Skull.

John Adams, 35 years old, Duquoin electrician, was killed at 12:15 a. m. today when he came in contact with a high tension wire of the Illinois Power & Light Co., at Sixth and West Main streets, Belleville.

According to his brother, Roy Adams, with whom he was working on a pole, tightening copper mountings, his wrench touched the wire carrying 33,000 volts from the Keokuk power plant. He fell 30 feet to the ground, suffering a fractured neck and skull. The body was badly burned and the head of the wrench was melted away, according to the brother.

Work with a pulmotor was abandoned after three hours. He is survived by his widow and three small children.

Lott on U

MAKEUP OF TEAMS FOR PLAY FRIDAY ANNOUNCED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Selection of the United States Davis Cup team to play France in the challenge round starting this Friday in Paris, with George Lott of Chicago substituted for Francis T. Hunter of New York, was announced today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The other three members are Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J.

Tilden and Lott will play in the singles, while the crack combination of Allison and Van Ryn, which has been cutting a sensational figure abroad, will play the doubles. Lott's replacement of Hunter in which defeated Germany, 5 to 0, in the inter-zone competition concluded yesterday at Berlin.

No official explanation of the shift was contained in the announcement of team selection by Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, chairman of the Davis Cup Committee. On the national list, Hunter ranks No. 3 and Lott No. 3. It was understood, however, on the basis of past performances, that Lott's chances of winning against the Frenchmen were considered brighter.

Hunter has seldom been impressive against any of the French aces. Lott, one of the best volleyers since Vincent Richards, has been a candidate for the Davis cup team for several years. He was taken abroad with the squad last year but this is the first time he has been named for challenge round competition.

Youth Is in Majority. The Chicago star will not be 23 years old until next October. His selection, along with the inclusion of 24-year-old Wilmer Allison and 23-year-old Johnny Van Ryn, puts youth in the majority on an American Davis cup team for the first time in many years. The veteran Tilden alone remains to represent the old guard—but is still the singles ace.

With the possibility that Rene Lacoste will not be able to play for France, American tennis officials believe the challenging team will have more than an outside chance of winning back the cup. It is assumed this situation was taken into account in nominating Lott, who has at times risen to brilliant heights as a singles performer. One of his most conspicuous achievements was the straight set defeat of Lacoste at Southampton two years ago. He has also defeated Tilden in tournament play but was beaten by Hunter in the semifinals of the national championships last September at Forest Hills.

LACOSTE OUT OF DAVIS CUP PLAY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 22.—Official selection of the French Davis cup team for this week's challenge round play with America, announced tonight, definitely eliminated Rene La Coste from the list.

The Americans were notified by the French captain, Pierre Gillou, that his team would be chosen from Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Christian Bousquet and Jacques Brugnon.

Cochet and Jean Borotra will play the singles matches. La Coste, ace of the victorious French teams of 1927 and 1928, has been ill with a severe cold and complications which kept him out of competition entirely. His loss is considered a big blow to the defending forces.

In anticipation of it, however, M. Gillou previously had disclosed his intention to rely on Cochet and Borotra, probably for the doubles as well as the singles.

MAKEUP OF TEAMS FOR PLAY FRIDAY ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK, July 22.—Selection of the United States Davis Cup team to play France in the challenge round starting this Friday in Paris, with George Lott of Chicago substituted for Francis T. Hunter of New York, was announced today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The other three members are Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J.

Tilden and Lott will play in the singles, while the crack combination of Allison and Van Ryn, which has been cutting a sensational figure abroad, will play the doubles. Lott's replacement of Hunter is the only change from the lineup which defeated Germany, 5 to 0, in the inter-zone competition concluded yesterday at Berlin.

No official explanation of the shift was contained in the announcement of team selection by Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, chairman of the Davis Cup Committee. On the national list, Hunter ranks No. 3 and Lott No. 5. It was understood, however, on the basis of past performances, that Lott's chances of winning against the Frenchmen were considered brighter. Hunter has seldom been impressive against any of the French aces.

LACOSTE OUT OF DAVIS CUP PLAY

PARIS, July 22.—Official selection of the French Davis cup team for this week's challenge round play with America, announced tonight, definitely eliminated Rene Lacoste from the list. The Americans were notified by the French captain, Pierre Gillou, that his team would be chosen from Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Christian Bussu and Jacques Brugnon.

Cochet and Jean Borotra will play the singles matches. Lacoste, ace of the victorious French teams of 1927 and 1928, has been ill with a severe cold and complications which kept him out of competition entirely. His loss is considered a big blow to the defending forces.

In anticipation of it, however, M. Gillou previously had directed trip to Paso Robles, Cal., for spring training in 1930.

OPEN DATE FOR ST. LOUIS CLUBS

TODAY was an open date in the schedule for both St. Louis baseball teams, the Browns having departed to open another Eastern campaign in Boston and the Cardinals being on their way home from Boston.

The Redbirds will open a series at Sportsman's with Burt Shotton's Philadelphia team tomorrow.

Throwing of Pop Bottles Stirs Two Minor Leagues

CHICAGO, July 22.—President Hickey of the American Association today suspended John Butler and Earl Smith of the Minneapolis club, and L. J. Boone of Columbus, for their conduct in yesterday's games.

UMPIRE HIT IN EYE WHEN ROCHESTER FANS THROW POP BOTTLES

NEW YORK, July 22.—Baseball umpires are finding the going rough these days. Detroit fans became so incensed at the way Umpire Ormsby called strikes in the game with the Athletics yesterday that mounted police were called to escort him off the field when the crowd swarmed on the field after the game.

MAN WHO STARTED MCGRAW IN PRO BASEBALL IS DEAD

Special to The Post-Dispatch. OLEAN, N. Y., July 22.—William H. Simpson, former Mayor of this city and the man who started John J. McGraw on his professional baseball career, is dead here today after a brief illness.

KAVANAUGH TO ASSIST IN MANAGEMENT OF THE MADISON SOCCER CLUB

Phil Kavanaugh, veteran local soccer official and manager, and a fine forward during his playing days, will assist in the management of the Madison Soccer Club of the St. Louis Professional League next season. This announcement was made last night at a banquet tendered the club at Hotel Jefferson, when the Western championship trophy was presented to the team, while the players received medals.

Heeney to Fight Campolo Aug. 14

NEW YORK, July 22.—Victorio Campolo, latest Argentine heavyweight threat, has been matched for a 10-round contest with Tom Heeney, the veteran New Zealand ace, at Ebbets Field, Promoter Humbert Fugazy announced today.

Campolo, in his American debut recently, won a foul from Arthur Dekub.

JACK DEMPSEY'S AGENT HERE TO INSPECT ARENA

Leonard Sacks, secretary to Jack Dempsey, today held a conference with Ben Brinkman of the National Exhibition Co., builders of the big arena which is under construction on Oakland avenue near Forest Park Highlands, concerning the use of the new structure for fight promotion purposes.

"I am just returning from the coast to Detroit," Sacks explained, "and dropped in here to see what progress was being made on the structure and to discuss plans for holding boxing shows here. The arena is a splendid one and will seat more than 20,000 when completed. Mr. Brinkman seems to be sold on the idea that a big fight once a month between nationally known fighters would go over big and I am inclined to agree with him."

"We did not do any business today, but I think it highly probable that Dempsey will reach some form of agreement to put on fights here. A good show, at a $5 top, ought to bring out the crowds."

"Jack is in good condition but not talking fight for himself, so far as I know. Many of his friends think he could better Schmeling down in two or three rounds, if they were to fight."

CANZONERI ALREADY IN CONDITION FOR BOUT WITH MANDELL

CHICAGO, July 22.—Confident and almost at the peak of condition, Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion who will attempt to knock the lightweight crown from Sammy Mandell's head at Chicago stadium Aug. 2, today was in camp to finish training.

The challenger arrived yesterday and said he would leave, carrying the lightweight championship with him.

Mandell has been in camp at the Washington Park race track for a week, fighting to make the division limit of 135 pounds. Plenty of hard work has brought him down to 138, with one week left in which to whittle off the extra three pounds.

"German Jack Dempsey" and His American Manager

Schmeling, Germany's Dempsey, Here for Exhibition Bout, Says He Will Not Fight Phil Scott

Max Schmeling, of Germany, candidate for the world heavyweight ring championship, arrived in St. Louis early this morning, accompanied by one-fourth of his managers, Joe Jacobs of New York. Schmeling, smiling and nattily dressed, attracted only casual attention from the crowd, and adjourned to the Statler Hotel for a bath.

The "German Jack Dempsey" will box a four-round exhibition here tonight at the Battery A Arena. Schmeling showed no indication of being travel-worn from the grind of barnstorming, now in its third week.

Matchmaker Jack Tippett said today that the fight program would be held regardless of weather conditions. Schmeling, to keep up his schedule, must depart at midnight tonight, which would make a postponement, in case of rain, impossible. Tippett said that if necessary Schmeling would enter the ring in the rain.

"Schmeling has endured the exhibition tour wonderfully," Manager Jacobs said. "Already he has appeared in Boston, Providence, Detroit, Columbus, O., Philadelphia, Cleveland, Dayton, Indianapolis, Terre Haute and now St. Louis. He still has the hardest part of his tour confronting him. From St. Louis he goes to Milwaukee, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Jose, Spokane, Calgary, Winnipeg and Minneapolis."

"You can see for Max that he will positively NOT meet Phil Scott, as ordered by the New York Commission. That match was arranged by Arthur Hucio, who brought Max to this country but from whose contract Schmeling was freed by a ruling of the boxing authorities of his home country. Max declines to have anything to do with his first manager, although in New York Buelow collects 20 per cent of Schmeling's earnings.

Two Much Training Involved. "There are three reasons why Max will not fight Scott. The first is that he will not do any business that was arranged for him by Buelow. The second and most important is that it would entail two hard training periods for him, one in August and the other in September, which is not good for any man. It isn't being done in heavy-weight circles. Third, the Scott fight does not mean a thing to Schmeling and can not enhance his reputation."

"The Madison Square Garden authorities are trying to arrange for a fight between Max and Jack Sharkey and that is the one we are interested in. We have an engagement in Chicago, Wednesday, to meet Frank Bruen, general manager of the Garden, to discuss details of the fight. So far there are several cities in the running and New York is not one of them, because of the attitude of the State Commission. Chicago, Detroit, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Atlantic Night Football in Ohio.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 22.—South High will introduce night football here this fall. It was learned this week that the Red and Blue institution has contracted for lighting equipment costing $1200 to be installed during the vacation period.

It is said that South will play all home games in the evening, including the big inter-sectional battle with Horace Mann High of Gary, Ind., on Oct. 12.

CHATTANOOCHEE, AT 7 TO 1, WINS EMPIRE STAKE

By the Associated Press. EMPIRE RACE TRACK, N. Y., July 22.—W. A. Rosen's Chattanooga, at 7 to 1, won the Swift Purse, a sprint over the six-furlong route, here this afternoon. Chester was second and Hansoni-anna third.

There were 14 starters and all received a good play. At the start Rose, who had the mount on Chattanooga, got her away on her toes. The filly showed excellent speed and, making the pace all the way, won in a drive by three-quarters of a length. Chester beat Hansonianna a head for the place.

ROOKIE, SUFFERING FROM WATER ON KNEE, UNABLE TO MAKE TRIP; CLUB WON 10 OF 23 HOME GAMES

By James M. Gould

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON, July 22.—Dan Howley and his third place Browns are on their way to the Hub today to open their second invasion of the Eastern sector tomorrow. This has been designated as a traveling day by the schedule-makers, so Howley and his tollers will have nothing to do except go over past records and figure out how the home stand could have been made more prosperous.

To open the stay at Sportsman's Park, the Browns did all that could be expected, inasmuch as the Detroit Tigers were stopped in three out of four engagements. Then, however, came the Easterners. It was against these clubs that the Browns fell down, as a record of seven victories against 12 defeats attests.

In the battling with the clubs from the East, the Browns did not win a single set. The best was an even break in four battles with the Red Sox. Facing the Yankees and Athletics, the Browns played only 300 baseball, taking three out of 10. Against the world champions it was 1-3, while facing the men of Mack the count was two victories and four reverses. Opposing the Senators, the Browns won two and lost three.

Western Teams Prove Easy. Had the Browns been as successful against the Eastern clubs as while facing those of the West, the team's percentage would be much better. Before the Easterners came at Sportsman's Park, the St. Louis entry played a round with the West. Of the battles, 12 were won and only three lost, a mark of .800. Four of these contests were at Chicago and all resulted in victories, after the Sox and Indians had been downed in five of seven at home.

A pace of this sort against the East and the Browns would not be 14 games removed from first place and four contests behind the Yankees.

Howley and his tollers are speeding Eastward with two athletes at home on the injured list. Oscar Melillo is lost because of a split finger, while Rick Ferrell, the young catcher, has water on the knee. Ferrell suffered his injury in the second game of Saturday's double-header with the Senators when he was hit on the right knee by a foul tip. Yesterday it developed that he would be unable to depart with the club.

The injury to Ferrell leaves the Browns with only two catchers, Wally Schang and Clyde Manion. The veteran Schang will without a doubt be the bulk of the receiving for the club, while Otho Brannon will continue at second in place of Melillo, who had been playing the best game of his career, is able to rejoin the team. He hopes to get into harness before the team returns from the East.

Lelivelt Changes Location.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 21.—Jack Lelivelt believes a change of scenery is due to bring him a change of luck.

Lelivelt, manager of the Milwaukee American Association team for several years, always had his club up around the top, but he never captured the pennant.

He finally gave up the Brews, post and came West to sign as pilot of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League.

Routis Ends Training.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Andre Routis, world's featherweight champion, and Al Singer, New York junior lightweight, will wind up training today for their 10-round bout in Brooklyn on Wednesday night.

Century Juniors Win Over Senior Eight in Feature Race of Municipal Regatta

By Damon Kerby

Members of the second crew at the Century Boat Club, called the juniors, will tell you today that perhaps there is something after all in the statement that at some time or other the meek shall inherit the earth.

That particular time came for the second crew of Century's, yesterday afternoon, in the eight-oared event in the municipal regatta on the Mississippi. Only two other crews were entered, but one of the two was the Century No. 1 crew, being pointed for the National regatta at Springfield, Mass., Aug. 2 and 3. The other crew represented St. Louis Rowing Club, which concluded yesterday, and each was by a one-run margin.

During the road campaign, which ended with the double defeat at the hands of the Braves, the Century's only severe setback was in the 1000-meter race, where they were losing 15 games. They dropped four straight to the Pirates, three out of five to the Phillies, three out of four to Brooklyn, and three out of five from the Giants and the dropped three out of four to the Braves.

GRAND CIRCUIT MEET OPENS WITH TROT RACE

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 22.—With the Furniture Capital $5000 trot, scheduled for Thursday, the feature attraction of the Grand Circuit meeting was to open here this afternoon.

Today's program, featured by the $2000 Blytheville Country Club 2:15 trot, was to be a war of attrition for non-winners of the Grand Circuit this season. A 2:13 pace was to open the program.

The Furniture Capital $5000 trot, Thursday, will afford for the first time this season a meeting between the best trotters of the nation. The trots so far this year have drawn fast fields but have been dominated by Peter Cowl, the season's sensation. Peter Cowl is here but has not been nominated for the Furniture Capital stake. Bogalusa the Great, Fulworth, High Noon, Lullawatt and Nellie Signal, acknowledged to be some of the greatest trotters of the country, have been nominated for the event.

VANCE STRIKES OUT WILSON FOUR TIMES TO END BATTING STREAK

NEW YORK, July 22.—Hack Wilson, pudgy outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, would prefer, perhaps, if Arthur "Duke" Vance wouldn't bother to pitch against the Cubs.

Wilson had hit safely in 27 consecutive games when he faced the "Duke" yesterday. Yesterday, however, he was swamped soon after the start in that event. It was the only accident of the day. The two carsmen, G. Wood and J. Rainer, were

CARDINALS LOSE 15 OUT OF 22 GAMES ON TRIP

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

ENROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, July 22.—Billy Southworth and his Cardinals are coming home from a most disastrous Eastern trip and there won't be any blowing of whistles or any parade when the boys detrain at Union Station tomorrow morning. They may be champions of the National League for the season of 1928, but they're just a hustling ball club, now, trying to stay in the first division.

Occasionally the Red Birds get enthusiastic. As they did after two straight in New York and one in Boston gave them a winning streak of three in a row. Then they wonder if it would be possible to get into the pennant fight again. But such ambitious moments are rare and most of the time they are wondering what four-place money amounts to and whether there is any chance that the Brooklyn Dodgers may overtake them.

It is remarkable how a ball club and its prospects can change in a month. In June, they were in first place, favored in many quarters over the Chicago Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates today they are in fourth place, below the .500 mark and they have won only one series in a month.

Off to a Bad Start. OTHER great fighters have had starting setbacks. Leonard, the great lightweight, was knocked out twice in his early career.

Mickey Walker, the present middleweight champion and candidate for the light-heavyweight crown as well, was knocked out by Joe Gans, at the height of his career.

Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight king and heavy-weight pretender, has been on the floor, but managed to weather an actual knockout.

Joe Gans, the present welterweight champion, was knocked out by Eddie Roberts and by Young Jack Thompson.

Jimmy Mandell won from Sammy Mandell on a technical knockout, only last year, but Mandell is still king of the 135-pounders.

Jack Dempsey, who is a king of shock-absorbers as well as the greatest punisher of the ring, was knocked out only last year, but Dempsey is still king of the 175-pounders.

That Schmeling was able to overcome his early setbacks may mean that he has that "it" without which no man in any kind of life can quite attain the peak of success.

Profited by Defeat. SCHMELING'S knockout by "Gypsy" Daniels was unusual and unlooked for. It happened abroad, of course, in the second meeting of the men. Earlier in his career Schmeling had fought Daniels and had gained a 10-round decision.

They met again a year later. Schmeling had added experience and skill and was a bigger and more powerful fighter. In the first round he set sail for Daniels expecting to polish him off quickly. He pounded the Australian about the ring and quickly had him staggering. Another plunger sent Schmeling's foe staggering into the ropes. Seeing his opponent apparently helpless, Max dropped his guard, unwilling to finish a crippled enemy. Then, in a flash, his shaming foe came to life with a bang. He landed on Schmeling's chin—and they drew the curtains on Max for the night. Time: Less than a round.

That experience opened Schmeling's eyes, and because of it he is a tough bird to deceive, today. That was one reason why he used such extreme caution in his bout with Paulino, when the Basque adopted his outrageous fighting posture.

But it was the Paulino fight that proved Schmeling did not have a "glass jaw," as advertised by his detractors. For Paulino pitched a few of his Paris stage gun shots right on the chin of Max, without even staggering the German.

Due to Arrive? SEASONING is required to develop a champion. History cites few instances of quick arrival at championship fame in any branch of the fight game.

Dempsey was one of the fastest workers and he was fighting for five years before getting his chance at Jess Willard. Gene Tunney was eight years reaching title class, so far as the world's championship was concerned. Gene began toying with the game in 1920 and it was not until 1927 that he caught a rusty and worried Dempsey at the low end of his fighting power and took away the championship on points.

Bob Fitzsimmons did not win the heavyweight crown until he was 35 years of age and had been fighting for about 14 years. Jack Johnson was 30 years old before he came to the ring of the miniature Tommy Burns and therefore Jack must have been occupied eight or 10 years in reaching the top. Jess Willard was 52 years of age when he

We Have With Us—

ABILITY to overcome handicaps is the best indication of "class" both in man and beast. Applied to the career of Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight boxer who is with us today, we find that the "Teutonic Jack Dempsey" has qualified to wear the purple.

Although his published record does not show it, it is reliably told that that Schmeling was knocked out at least once, whipped twice and disqualified on two other occasions. That is a severe handicap, especially when the knockout came at the hands of Gypsy Daniels, a comparatively unknown Australian heavyweight.

In spite of all this, Max's reputation has steadily augmented and he is now recognized as the outstanding candidate for the right to face Sharkey in the title final.

Schmeling earned this right by victories over men, considered almost immune to punishment hitherto, stopping one of them and having the other virtually helpless at the close of their encounter. The early blots on his escutcheon have been forgotten and he is on the high road to success.

Off to a Bad Start. OTHER great fighters have had starting setbacks. Leonard, the great lightweight, was knocked out twice in his early career.

Mickey Walker, the present middleweight champion and candidate for the light-heavyweight crown as well, was knocked out by Joe Gans, at the height of his career.

Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight king and heavy-weight pretender, has been on the floor, but managed to weather an actual knockout.

An outstanding exception to the theory that seasoning is necessary to make a champion-fighter was James J. Jeffries who owns the remarkable record of having fought only 11 public fights before he took the title from Bob Fitzsimmons.

They Fight More Frequently Now.

IN these times of easy international communication and active promotion, fighters have far better opportunities to mature quickly than in the olden days. It is nothing remarkable today for a fighter to engage in 25 fights a year. Any boxer who desired could have that many and more, and be ten times better paid than in the pioneer period of ring history.

For example: John L. Sullivan was active in the ring up to his thirty-fourth year, when Corbett defeated him. Yet in all this time he engaged in only 33 battles that found their way into his record.

James J. Corbett fought only 23 times, the book shows; Bob Fitzsimmons, who continued fighting until he was past 40 years of age, engaged in only 41 fights according to his record; James J. Jeffries had a low score for the entire championship outfit with only 23 fights in his entire public career; Jess Willard retired with 32 in his record.

Note the difference in the records of the modern fighters: Gene Tunney, who retired with a couple of million, after only 68 fights; Jack Sharkey, who has been fighting only five years, already has fought over 40 times; Jack Dempsey has battled 79 times; George Godfrey has fought in 71 engagements; and that young hustler Stirling has rolled up the unbelievable record of 275 fights.

Schmeling thus far has fought 47 times and, as public fights, he has had twice as much experience as the great Jeffries, and has actually fought more than any of the old school of fighters who have held titles, except the Negro Jack Johnson, who had some 90 fights in his career—a world's record for those who have held the heavyweight championship in the past.

Thus, when they are saying that Schmeling is inexperienced, they are not going by the book. But it is probably true that many of the fights Schmeling has engaged in were against men of little worth and therefore of small educational value to him. He still needs plenty of fights against men who know how to fight, the world will be ready to box. And when he disposes of accepted as a seasoned second.

RUTH BAILEY DEFEATS MISS ZINKE IN WESTERN TENNIS MEET FINAL

ST. LOUIS GIRL IS TOO STEADY FOR OPPONENT; GLEDHILL WINS

CHICAGO, July 22.—Two Western Tennis Association trophies today were on the way to California, in the possession of Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, and Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena.

Gledhill yesterday won the final of the men's singles from Vines in a great five-set tussle, 12-10, 6-2, 6-2, 3-7, 6-1, while the pair worked together in the doubles to conquer Red Rorer and George O'Connell of Chicago, in another five-set match, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati, lost her women's singles title to Ruth Bailey of St. Louis. The St. Louis girl was steady and won easily, 6-2, 6-3. Miss Zinke and Ruth O'Connell, also of Cincinnati, took the doubles from Mrs. Ruth Reese, Saginaw, Mich., and Mrs. Barbara Duffy of Cleveland, 4-6, 7-5, 8-6.

Gledhill's name goes on the massive silver trophy which has been in competition for two decades and which bears the names of such tennis stars as William T. Tilden II, Maurice McLaughlin, John Hennessey, George Lott Jr., Harvey Soudgrass, Thomas Bundy, Melville Long and Vincent Richards. Soudgrass was the last owner to win the trophy.

After battling on even terms with Gledhill for 18 games in the first set, Vines had set point at 10-5 when a shout from the stands disturbed him, but Gledhill seized his chance and ran out the set at 12-10.

Vines recovered and raced through the second set without the loss of a game, but Gledhill retained by taking the third set, 6-2. Gledhill swept into a commanding lead in the fourth set and had match point at 5-3, when Vines had a lucky break on a shot that hit the net cord and trickled over for a padding. Vines ran out the set for four straight games, 7-5, but that was his last effort as Gledhill steadied down and raced through the final set, 6-1.

FIRST MUNS FLAG CLINCHED BY FRESHMEN OF NORTH SIDE LEAGUE

NEW CHAMPIONS DEFEAT PATTONS TWICE; KOLSTERS BEAT GINGHAMS

The Freshmen of the North Side Intermediate League clinched the pennant in their division of the Municipal Athletic Association yesterday by defeating the Patton 3, 2, and 10 to 2, for their eleventh and twelfth victories. It was the first flag to be decided this season in the Munsy association.

Several other teams almost clinched the championship in their divisions. One of these is the Kolster nine in the strong Empire League. With only a half game separating the Kolsters and the second-place Gingham, prior to yesterday's game, the Kolsters won, 17 to 5, to increase their lead to a game and a half, barring an upset, virtually assures them the pennant.

The best individual performance in the Empire League, though, was made by Currier, pitching for the Bly-Moss, who allowed only one hit in leading his team to a 10 to 0 victory over the Typos. A one-hit game was also turned in by Al Vogt of the Scruggs in the West Side League in the first of a double-header against the Morgans. The Scruggs won both games.

The Wilsons broke a tie for first place with the Warners in the City League by defeating the latter, 7 to 4.

Our Mr. William Southworth of the Cardinal baseball team predicts that taking on shine off the ball by rubbing it with soil will also take some of the shine out of the home-run hitters.

On the other hand there was a time when pitchers used a "shine" ball which the batters claim gave them (the pitchers) a big advantage. You can't please all of the people all of the time but you can fool some of the batters some of the time.

However, the Red Birds will come home to roost Tuesday and we will have a chance to see just how this "back-to-the-soil" movement is going to work out.

We trust that our genial and hard-working ground keeper, Mr. Bill Stockick, will see to it that there is an ample supply of good rich Missouri loam on hand.

We have a sort of feeling that if this soil rubbing stunt had been effective at the beginning of the season the Cards would be so far ahead right now that you couldn't see 'em for the dust.

FIELDS FAVORED TO BEAT DUNDEE IN TITLE FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 22.—This is a crucial year in the life of Jackie Fields, aggressive Los Angeles welterweight. Fields, already holder of the National Boxing Association's 147-pound crown, has a chance at last to win general recognition when he meets Joe Dundee, Baltimore Italian, in a 15-round titular battle at Det. on Thursday night.

Less by good luck than by good management, Dundee has held onto the welterweight crown for more than two years. Ever since he captured the title from Pete Latzo in 1927, Dundee has been more than a little reluctant to place it in jeopardy. Chiefly he has been content to go barnstorming, forcing all opponents to come in over the class limit. It was in a bout of this kind that he was knocked out by Young Jack Thompson, Pacific Coast Negro. All Mello, by agreement, was overweighed when he outpointed Dundee in two bouts this year.

Fields to Be Favorite.

Now the Baltimore Italian has decided to risk his title against the man the critics have hailed as the most logical of all logical welterweight contenders, and there are plenty of them. Fields has beaten virtually every leading welterweight in the business, including Thompson and Sergeant Sam Baker, who at one time was the East's leading candidate for the honor.

The bout, to be held in Floyd Fitzsimmons' new arena, probably will find Dundee on the short-end of the betting.

Wright Out for Year.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The news that Glenn Wright will submit to an operation on his ailing throwing arm this week means that the Brooklyn shortstop will be out of the lineup for the remainder of the season. Wright, who splintered a bone in his right shoulder while playing handball in Kansas City last winter, has seen little service since he came to Brooklyn from Pittsburgh in the Jess Petty trade.

BURGESS IS IN FOURTH ROUND OF CLASS A TENNIS

Thirty-three of the 112 singles entries and 12 of the 32 doubles entrants were eliminated as a result of the matches played off yesterday in the men's Class A tennis tournament held in Forest Park on the Jefferson Memorial courts.

The Class A tournament was introduced this year for the purpose of giving the Class A players fair competition in tournament play. By doing this the tournament committee found it necessary to eliminate 33 of the original entries because they were not considered of championship caliber.

Gray Horses Passing.
Gray horses on the turf are becoming unpopular in this country. This was not the case years ago when some of the most consistent and popular horses racing were grays.

A few of the old-time grays that performed consistently were Don Dome, Silverskin, Oxford, Duellist and the never-to-be-forgotten Taby Tosa, the hero of so many hard-fought battles on the local tracks, years ago.

Mars Cassidy, Air Pilot.
Starter Marshall Cassidy, accompanied by Francis Nelson, the steward, is planning to fly from Ottawa, Canada, to Saratoga for a few days racing. Cassidy just recently was issued his license as an air pilot.

The track at Bainbridge, where racing opened Saturday, with many former Fairmount horses campaigning, appears to be about two seconds slower to the mile than the Collinsville course, judging from the time made. It probably lacks the abundant cushion that prevails at Fairmount. Horses used to the more yielding track are apt to become sore and lame after racing over a harder surface.

The desire to see horses hang up records has worked havoc among the ranks of some of the best, especially in the West. Nature hardly intended a horse to run over a hard unyielding surface carrying 120 pounds and be timed.

VETERAN CRANDALL IS BACK AT LOS ANGELES

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 22.—Otis "Doc" Crandall, veteran spitball pitcher, has rejoined the Los Angeles club, Pacific Coast Baseball League, of which he was a mainstay for more than 10 years, until the season of 1927.

Crandall was given his release in 1927 so that he could become part owner, with Art Griggs, of the Wichita club of the Western League. He sold out his Wichita interests to Griggs in mid-season of that year, and joined the Sacramento club of the Coast League.

Crandall at one time pitched for the New York Giants, coming to the National League from the "Bush" Leagues. He then began his decade of service with the Los Angeles club.

DOWN THE STRETCH

By Melvin D. Fulcher

Grouping horses as the "field" has been one of the most criticized features of the mutual form of speculation on horse races. It works a hardship on the players.

Horses which taken singly would be at long prices are often cut to nothing as a result of this field grouping. Flying Ebony, winner of a Kentucky Derby not so long ago, being a conspicuous example.

The abolition of the mutual field has been the subject of considerable protest from race goers, horsemen and turf writers for some time. It has been done away with in some places and racing has gone ahead with increased interest as a result.

Records Set by "Platers."

The facts about records show that the fastest time is not always made by the high-class horses.

It has been proved that any horse with speed will run very fast over a smooth hard track under light weight and other favorable conditions. As a result, many track records at various distances are held by horses of the plater class.

True many high-class horses shatter track records, but it is when the going is not at its best that a really good horse shows up in such brilliant comparison. Old Exterminator's feat at the Philadelphia track in 1920 when he broke the track record for a mile and an eighth over a track that was fetlock deep in mud stands out as one of these instances.

MISS MAGUIRE TO COMPETE IN TITLE SPRINTS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Annals of "battles of the century," a test for sprint champions, will be held Saturday. Not for Simpson, Tolson, Bracey, et al., but for the outstanding women sprinters of the country who will fight it out in the Women's National A. A. N. championships at Soldier Field.

Headed by Betty Robinson of the Illinois Women's A. A. N., winner of the 100 meters in the 1925 Olympic games, a field of 28 stars has been entered for the event. Olive Hasenbus of Boston, Katherine Maguire of Boston, and three New Yorkers, Jean Cross, Carrie Jensen and Miff Washburn, all members of the Olympic team, will race against the champion. Eleanor Egg of Paterson, N. J., Metropolitan A. A. N. titleholder in the event, also will compete.

The South will have two threats in the race, Margaret Whitcomb of Dallas, Tex., holder of the Southern A. A. N. championship, and O. U. Kruger of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Several other members of the Olympic team have sent in entries. Jean Shirley of the Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia, holder of the women's high jump record, is entered, and will encounter competition from Miss Maguire, who held the record before the Philadelphia girl shattered it last winter.

Virginia, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mineman, residing on the Smithton road south of Belleville, was fatally injured late yesterday when struck by an automobile near her home. She was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital where she was pronounced dead of a broken neck. SISTER FINDS BROTHER AFTER BELIEVING HIM DEAD 20 YEARS

Oil Company's Efforts to Find Heirs to Lease Make Reunion Possible.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MALVERN, Ark., July 22.—Within a few days Mrs. O. B. de Bord will be reunited with her brother, Olen Jones of Crockett Bluff, after a 20-year separation and the belief that he was dead. This reunion plan has been made possible through efforts of the Gulf Refining Co. to find heirs to an oil lease near Logansport, La. Olen Jones, 22 years old, was found operating a farm at Crockett Bluff. When 2 years old, Jones' mother died, and his sister, then 12 years old, was sent to Logansport to be cared for by relatives of his mother. The father of the children moved to Arkansas, taking his 2-year-old son with him. Six years later the father died and Jones was taken care of by friends of his father. An older brother went back to the former Jones home near Monroe, La. He recently was killed in an oil field accident. Jones said that he was unaware that any of his relatives were living with the exception of an uncle, but he did not know the whereabouts of his uncle. He telegraphed his sister yesterday that he had been visiting with his kin and seeing about the oil lease at Logansport, and will come here soon.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 22.—Geraldine Farrar, returning from Europe today, declared that the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York has become "merely a well regulated stock company, performing its small repertoire time after time in the same way." Miss Farrar added: "There are no features, no striking personalities now to touch off the public's enthusiasm. The Metropolitan is good, of course, but not exciting." When Miss Farrar retired from the Metropolitan several years ago, there were persistent reports of friction between her and the management, and she was quoted as having said she "forced out." She has repeatedly denied these reports.

ON YOUR RADIO
Every Wednesday night fun, music and song by the "FLIT SOLDIERS" over station KWK at 7:00 P. M.

SUPPOSE you heard this conversation:
"Jim is dead."
"No! What did he die of?"
"A fly got on his food."
That conversation would make you buy Flit, wouldn't it?
Well, maybe you never heard anyone say this, but it's true.

Not just Jim, but thousands of people die every year from diseases carried by flies, according to the United States Government.

Spray Flit indoors. It is guaranteed to kill household insects or money back. Kills deadly flies and dangerous, bothersome mosquitoes. It kills moths. The clean-smelling, non-staining vapor is harmless to humans. Spray Flit down cracks and crannies to get all the crawlers—the roaches, ants, bed bugs—and their eggs.

Also remember Flit repels insects outdoors. Take it with you hunting or fishing. It's part of the modern home equipment—for comfort and for safety too!

WORLD'S LARGEST SELLING INSECTICIDE—FLIT

18-Passenger Air Pullman Of Plane-Train Line Tested

Craft Equipped With Steam Heat and Berths to Be Used on Lindbergh Trans-Continental Route.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—More than 100 persons were taken for joy rides in airplanes at Roosevelt field yesterday in the new 18-passenger twin motored Curtiss-Concor. It was the first time the plane was taken on public demonstration flights and all those who rode in it expressed their enthusiasm.

The "flying Pullman" contains many striking innovations, mechanically and otherwise. In designing it its makers had in view not only safety but the utmost in comfort as well.

The plane's power plant consists of two Curtiss-Concor water-cooled motors of 635 horsepower each, placed on the lower wings on both sides of the fuselage. Although this is one of the interesting features of the giant plane, what interested the passengers most was the luxurious interior and the comfortable sliding chairs.

Padded Head Rests.
These are covered with leather, have high backs tapering to padded head rests and are adjustable automatically to any desired angle of inclination, accomplished easily by leaning back.

The cabin has a floor space of 134 square feet and is 6 feet, 3 inches high, with a wide aisle. The interior is arranged to accommodate three passengers abreast. It is divided into three compartments, separated by arches and accommodating six passengers each. If desired each of these compartments could be completely shut off from the other two, providing privacy for those who may want a section of their own. Over each seat is a rack for light articles.

For night flying the Curtiss-Concor can be converted into a sleeping plane with 12 berths. Space also can be arranged for the installation of a desk set, buffet and a refrigeration system. All baggage is carried in two metal-lined compartments, one in each outboard engine nacelle, in back of the gas tanks. The plane also is equipped with a lavatory.

To Be Steam-Heated.
The plane is to be heated by steam, a method never before employed in an airplane. The dimen-sive radiators, heated by super-heated steam, are beneath the opening in the floor. Weighing less than one pound, the water for this steam is raised to a high degree of heat in tiny boilers attached to the exhaust manifolds of the engines in the outer nacelles. Ventilators admit air through the roof, throwing air along the ceiling in such a way as to eliminate draught. There are three of these.

The plane also carries a new type radio and has devices for eliminating engine noise and fuselage vibration.

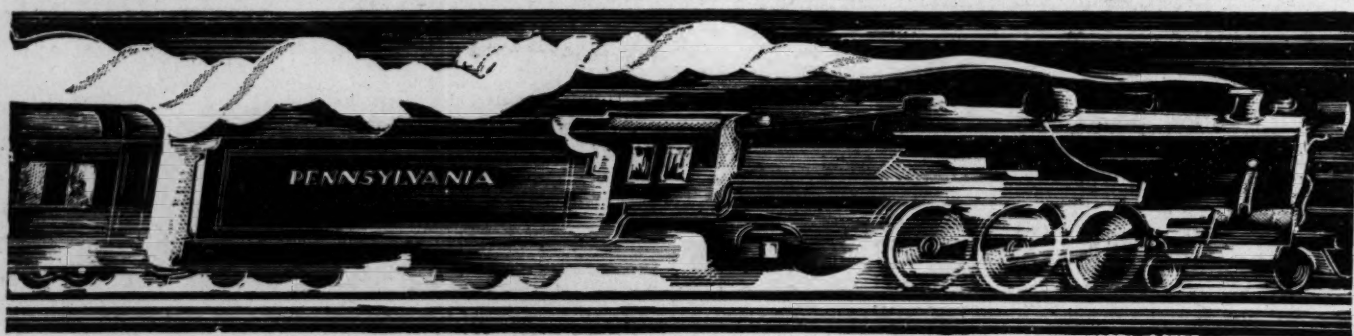

The Concor will be put in operation in the next few weeks on the Transcontinental Air Transport, coast-to-coast air-rail line.

otherwise known as the Lindbergh Line. Other planes of the same type are being constructed by the Curtiss company.

Tenth Body Found in Train Wreck.
STRATTON, Colo., July 22.—The body of Miss Julia Carlie, 21 years old, New York, was recovered yesterday from Spring Creek into which a Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific passenger train plunged last Tuesday when a flood weakened bridge gave way. Discovery of the body three miles from the scene of the disaster brought the number of known dead to 10. Miss Carlie was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Carlie of New York.

"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT"

—By Erich Maria Remarque

The stark, naked narrative of "a common soldier"

Unlike any other story of the World War ever written.

A new book which has profoundly impressed all of Europe and the United States

In these pages the reader sees the life of the soldier in all its phases—in the trenches, behind the lines, in hospital, at home on leave among civilians. It is a book of terrible experiences, at times crude because of the necessity of telling the absolute truth, at times rising to an almost incredible degree of tragedy, and at times relieved by humorous incidents and examples of rough good-comradeship.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" will be published exclusively in this territory in the

By JOHN L. BALDWIN

LONDON, July 22.—London's traffic congestion and a statement of conditions in London in formulating plans for better transportation. The old streets are now so choked nearly twice as long to travel by public from the houses of Parliament to the Bank of old leisurely pre-war days. It takes to traverse a mile and half of Oxford street, it did before the war. As a rough average, a man and the London business girl longer to get home from work traveling those good old days when nobody hurried.

This congestion at present is almost wholly above ground. London has four admirable underground railways which last year carried 168,000,000 persons, an increase of 12,000,000 over the previous year. This is the average yearly increase. The underground service is frequent and there are no complaints on that score. The trains are not the lighting express of the New York subway, but they are vastly better than the ear-shattering, nerve-racking New York subway trains. One can actually converse in them with reasonable comfort. Passengers stand during the rush hours, morning and evening, but they rarely reach the density of sardines in a can, and there are no hurly guards at any of the 125 subway stations to pack them by main force into the cars. On the whole, the subway is no problem yet. The four underground companies, now formed into what is known as the "Combine," plan further extensions of the subway in three different directions.

London Dislikes Elevated Roads. London has no elevated roads, and is deeply prejudiced against them. Occasionally somebody writes a letter to the Times, saying a good word for the Berlin elevated, but this is more than offset by the unenviable reputation of the New York and Chicago elevated lines. Furthermore, expert opinion is not unanimous that the elevated is not a practical expedient for London. Very few streets in London run in a straight line for more than two or three blocks. They wriggle and curve, and elevated roads built in them would have too many dangerous curves for the Londoner's peace of mind.

In the main, London's traffic congestion, according to traffic experts whom I have consulted, is chiefly due to bad management and lack of co-ordination. There is cut-throat competition between the old established street car lines, known in London as the "trams," and the bus. There is cut-throat competition between the London General Omnibus Co., with 5119 buses owned or operated by it and 22 independent "Pirate" companies with some 700 buses. These three great services dispute the narrow, winding streets with a throng of private vehicles. These include private motor cars, taxicabs, private motor trucks, and it is estimated about 12,000 horse drawn vehicles. The last named afford a serious problem. The other day in exactly five minutes I counted 60 horses passing Ludgate Circus. Horse-drawn vehicles are compelled by police to travel next to the curb, leaving a space for motor vehicles to pass, but they don't always succeed in this. In addition, they very slowly slow down the traffic at every crowded crossing.

For several years there has been agitation to forbid horse-drawn vehicles the use of certain important streets during certain hours, but it has come to nothing. For one thing, milk companies are opposed to such restrictions; they find the street much more economical than the motor truck.

Tramways Run at a Loss. London now has a big tramway system, with 165 miles of track operated by the London County Council at an annual loss of £226,000, or roughly $1,120,000. This loss falls directly upon "rates," or local taxes. This tramway service used to be highly profitable and was a source of great pride to the municipal socialists. For the year ended March 31, 1922, it brought in a profit for the taxpayer of £559,492, or $2,847,000, but owing to increased competition from buses this profit has steadily declined until March 31, 1925, the same showed a loss of £162,557, or $812,000. That deficit has steadily increased. In addition, there are three small private companies. Two Applauds Exposure of Street Railway Conspiracy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR exposure of the (binding) financiers who are trying the old franchise racket in St. Louis again has certainly drawn blood, as is shown by the latest issue of the propaganda sheet published by the St. Louis Public Service Co. In the extra issue, dated July 17, 1929, Stanley Clarke, president of the P. S. C., says that the Post-Dispatch editorials do not voice the opinions of the people of St. Louis, but that they merely constitute the voice of "one very unprincipled man who has no regard for the truth." Calling names is the last resort of a beaten and discredited debater. Clarke knows that the facts are against him, and he is becoming desperate in the face of exposure of the schemes of the franchise conspirators.

The prospect of a great financial clean-up at the expense of the car riders and the investing public is evaporating under the light of publicity and the coup of Newman, Clarke and their associates is getting farther away all of the time, thanks to the enlightenment given the citizens of St. Louis by the Post-Dispatch. Keep up the good work. Mr. Editor, even the P. S. C. gets out an issue of its "Propaganda Effort" (otherwise called Transit News) every day. The people know who is telling the truth, and before very much longer the high (binding) financial wizards will be forced to realize that truth is more powerful than propaganda, no matter how cleverly the latter is handed out.

Let Walker Use Own Judgment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE letter from T. W. C. on the Jaywalking ordinance, in your issue of July 13, is very much to the point. In St. Louis the pedestrian has no rights whatever. Let anyone who doubts this walk along Twelfth street between Market and Washington, particularly when traffic is heavy, and see.

If the pedestrian must shift for himself, he should not be hampered in his efforts to escape injury or death in crossing streets. He should be permitted to work out his own salvation as judgment dictates.

The idea of combining Jaywalking regulations with a general scheme for protecting the man on foot, and putting him on some parity with the automobilist, is accepted in effect centers like Boston, but in our supposedly progressive St. Louis nobody seems to have heard of it.

In Thirty Years.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT IS true when the street car fare was only five cents then the Post-Dispatch sold for one cent. That was 30 years ago, and the Post-Dispatch has made many changes, improvements and progress during that period of time.

What changes, improvements or betterment has been made by the street car company during the past thirty years? NOTHING except to change its name several times, juggle its records, use its revenue for payment of salaries and fees to so-called transportation experts and its army of officials. Let us forget what happened to the mill tax during that time? What happened to the $8,000,000 more or less "depreciation" fund?

JOHN B. CLANAHAN.

View-Obstructing Kingshighway Shrubbery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ABOUT two weeks ago, the driver of a truck was killed at Farlin avenue and Kingshighway. Wednesday at noon two cars collided and a small child was hurt at the same place.

The Kingshighway Memorial boulevard passes at this point, and bushes have been planted that have grown so high they obstruct the view. Traffic going north and turning west on Farlin cannot see the traffic coming south on Kingshighway and southbound traffic cannot see the man who makes the turn as both are hidden from each other by the shrubbery. The accident today is the fourth one the writer knows of and I felt the matter should be brought to attention through the newspapers who I feel are a public agency to some extent at least.

Though entirely in sympathy with beautifying the boulevard, I believe these bushes should either be removed or cut low three or four times a season.

Uncle Andy Patronizes Mr. Wickersham.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOTICE Andrew J. Volstead, referring to former Attorney-General Wickersham's proposal to strengthen enforcement of the prohibition laws, says "this suggestion of dividing responsibility for law enforcement cannot appeal to anyone who has had much practical experience." It would appear from this that Mr. Wickersham has not had much practical experience in legal matters. Would it not be possible to get Mr. Volstead to give him a few rudimentary instructions?

FINANCING THE STREET RAILWAYS.

Rapid transit will require large expenditures of public and private capital, and the Survey Commission must have assurance that funds required will be available so that its plans may be of the greatest practicable service for the car riders.

That was Engineer R. F. Kelker's preface to his suggestion that the Transportation Survey Commission get a new franchise for the street car company.

The ordinance which created the commission empowered the commission to employ engineers, draftsmen and other expert assistance. Mr. Kelker was hired for his presumed knowledge of engineering, that is, the physical facts of urban transportation, and not as a legal expert or adviser on questions of public policy. Instead of doing his job of planning a coordinated system of modern transportation for the city, he has devoted all of his energy to getting a franchise for the Public Service Co. In the way of the city, he acts more like an employee of the private company. The ordinance says the compensation of such employees of the commission shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. In fairness to the taxpayers the board should ask Mr. Kelker what he has done for them. They all know what he has done for the trolley company. Mr. Kelker, who says the commission must have assurance that required funds will be available for rapid transit, and the commissioners who accepted that suggestion, dropped all of their duties to join in the scheme for a new franchise. They do not seem to have read the ordinance creating the commission. There is nothing about financing in the ordinance; and, if there were, the time has not yet arrived to consider that phase of the matter.

The ordinance requires the commission to "make a comprehensive survey of transportation conditions covering all phases . . . and the ways and means whereby co-ordination and operation of all transportation facilities shall be brought about and governed for the benefit of the public." Furthermore, the commission is directed to submit to the Board of Aldermen a report or progressive reports of all its activities, findings and recommendations, and these reports are to be made without unnecessary delay.

Therefore, the commission is empowered only to recommend a program for co-ordinated transportation, and that is all it has to do. After the commission reports the program it believes best for the city, it will be for the Board of Aldermen to say whether that program or any part of it shall be enacted into law. The contemplated program would cost some $70,000,000. Obviously it would be unwise to commit the city to the expenditure of such a large sum on the mere approval of a majority of the 28 aldermen. It should be submitted to a vote of the people.

It was estimated by C. E. Smith, formerly consulting engineer of the city, that city-owned subways, elevated roads, or whatever the program calls for, would cost upwards of $70,000,000, and that the equipment, rails, cars, which a private company would provide if private operation were decided upon would cost only one-fourth to one-third of that amount.

It is possible that if the voters decided to expend this great sum of money for a city-owned transportation system, they might also decide to have the city instead of a private company operate the system. In that event there never would be anything for the company to finance, and if the voters decided on private operation there would be no occasion for helping the company finance itself for several years. General Manager Sam Greenland of the Public Service Co. told the Transportation Commission that five or 10 years would elapse after adoption of a program before any rapid transit would come into operation.

Although Chairman Russell of the commission said in the beginning that one of the questions to be determined was municipal or private operation, the commission since then has blandly assumed, not only private operation, but operation by the St. Louis Public Service Co. If the voters should in the end approve Mr. Russell's predetermination of this important question of public policy, even then a franchise would not be necessary to enable the company to finance itself. As the Post-Dispatch has heretofore shown, the company could operate quite as well under permits issued by the city, which would give the city home rule over service and fares, as under a franchise which deprives the city of all authority and gives exclusive control of fares and service to the State Public Service Commission.

As everyone in St. Louis knows, every decision made by the State Public Service Commission has been in favor of the company and against the city's contentions. Financing is the smoke screen behind which Promoter J. K. Newman and his associates have pushed their franchise scheme from the beginning. They know that financing is something with which the car riders are not familiar. But there is no mystery or difficulty about financing, as the profiteers would have the people believe. If a private company had a valid permit from the city of St. Louis, giving it a monopoly of the mass transportation business of this city of more than 800,000 inhabitants, and the city had built the system at a cost of $70,000,000 or more, that company would have no difficulty in borrowing $20,000,000 or $25,000,000, or any sum necessary to equip that system and let the fares begin to roll in.

Bishop Cannon insists that he broke no civil or moral law in his bucketshop operations, and he might have added, regretfully, that he did not even mildly flirt with Lady Luck.

THROWING AWAY THE PROHIBITION KEY.

Stephen Leacock, the Canadian humorist and philosopher, wrote in a magazine article on prohibition that we in the United States, through adoption of the eighteenth amendment, had made the mistake of locking the door and throwing away the key. In Canada, he suggested, they handled such affairs better: they had war-time prohibition but they didn't make repeal so difficult as to be practically impossible. They locked the door, that is to say, but they kept the key, which has since been used to open the way to the Government liquor control plan in vogue in most of the provinces.

The Dominion's more enlightened method of dealing with the liquor problem has just been illustrated by a plebiscite in the Province of Prince Edward Island. That the vote went for the retention of the existing prohibition act and against a proposal to substitute Government sale of liquor is beside the point. The point is that the people were able to record their will at the polls. On a direct test, they told the Government exactly what they wanted, and this will be the law of the province.

South of the border the wet communities are getting pretty much what they want, but only through a steadily growing process of nullification. The key to a legal change has been given into the keeping of the Bishop Cannons and the Dr. Clarence True Wilsons, which proves that Leacock, for all practical purposes, was right.

THE TAXPAYER'S DOLLAR.

There is no occasion for surprise or alarm in the announcement from Washington, based on a White House investigation, that an increase of federal expenditures in the next four years is likely.

The Navy building program, flood control, farm relief, the Boulder Dam project, new public buildings in Washington and throughout the country—these are some of the definite commitments into which Congress has entered. They represent, in the main, the growing needs of a growing country. A material reduction could be effected through curtailment of warship building, as a result of an international arms limitation agreement, but in the face of the other prospective expenditures it is doubtful if the money saved in this way would be sufficient to warrant a cut in taxes.

The truth is that unless essential services of the Government are to be starved, there are only two fields for the large practice of economy. One is the field of expenditures for war; substantial reduction here depends upon an arrangement with other nations. The other is the field of governmental organization, or, as Mr. Hoover called it when he was Secretary of Commerce, the "swamp of bad organization." Undoubtedly, money could be saved—perhaps enough money, in time, to be reflected in a sizeable saving to the taxpayer—through a more efficient grouping of the boards, bureaus and commissions of the government. But reorganization is bound to be a slow and difficult process. President Harding, with high hopes and the best intentions in the world, announced it as a major policy of his administration, but soon found himself against a stone wall of departmental opposition and inertia. President Hoover is tackling the job under somewhat more auspicious conditions, but there is a long road ahead of him before he can show any tangible results.

Meantime, with the obligations which the government has assumed above the normal run of expenses, it is inevitable that the outlays should increase. Talk of tax reduction, in the circumstances, is futile. And even if the circumstances were more favorable to reduction, it would remain a questionable policy. Federal taxes have been brought down to a moderate level. There is sound economic basis for the theory that any Treasury surpluses which may arise under present conditions should be devoted to the retirement of the public debt.

All things considered, no reason appears why the taxpayer should be frightened at the size of the forthcoming national budget. The United States has become a four billion dollar country. It is bursting out at the seams. What the taxpayer may properly demand of his government at this time is not cheapening economy, but value received for the money spent. In that direction lies true economy.

WE SING THE DUFFER.

That Evanston, Ill., policeman who, having made a hole-in-one, handed his clubs to the caddy and retired forever from golf, has inaugurated a fashion which ought to be emulated, extended and amplified.

If golf is to be made tolerable for the mob it must be liberated from the shackles of caste which now grip it. The hole-in-one contingent is not, in our opinion, a vexing problem. There are not enough of them to bother. They are scarier than Democrats in November. It is the course-record breakers and the par-shooters that must be gotten rid of. The Evanston copper has pointed the way.

Is there anything quite so strutting in this vale of divots as the chap who cracks the course record? He preens and he postures and he poses, while the golf-climbers ply him with attentions, fawn upon him with servile flattery and cater to his vanity like bawling courtiers. The gate for him.

The par-shooters, too, are an insufferable lot. They are haughty, contemptuous, overbearing. The skill that achieves par—as Herbert Spencer said of the billiard shark—is the token of a misspent life. They, too, must go.

The clique that does it in the eighties will also be well advised to tote their honors more modestly. They're inclined to be snooty. It's the chaps condemned to the nineties who are the bone and sinew, the stay and comfort, the hope and expectancy of the game of golf. But for these hewers of wood and carriers of water the corn would be waving on the fairways and the lowing kine would be meditating complacently where now the knickered gentry foregather, and the silken hose, aye, and the bare legs. We bespeak the cause of the duffer. We're for a Utopia where the nobles of the nineties shall reign supreme. Golf should be made pleasant for dufferocracy.

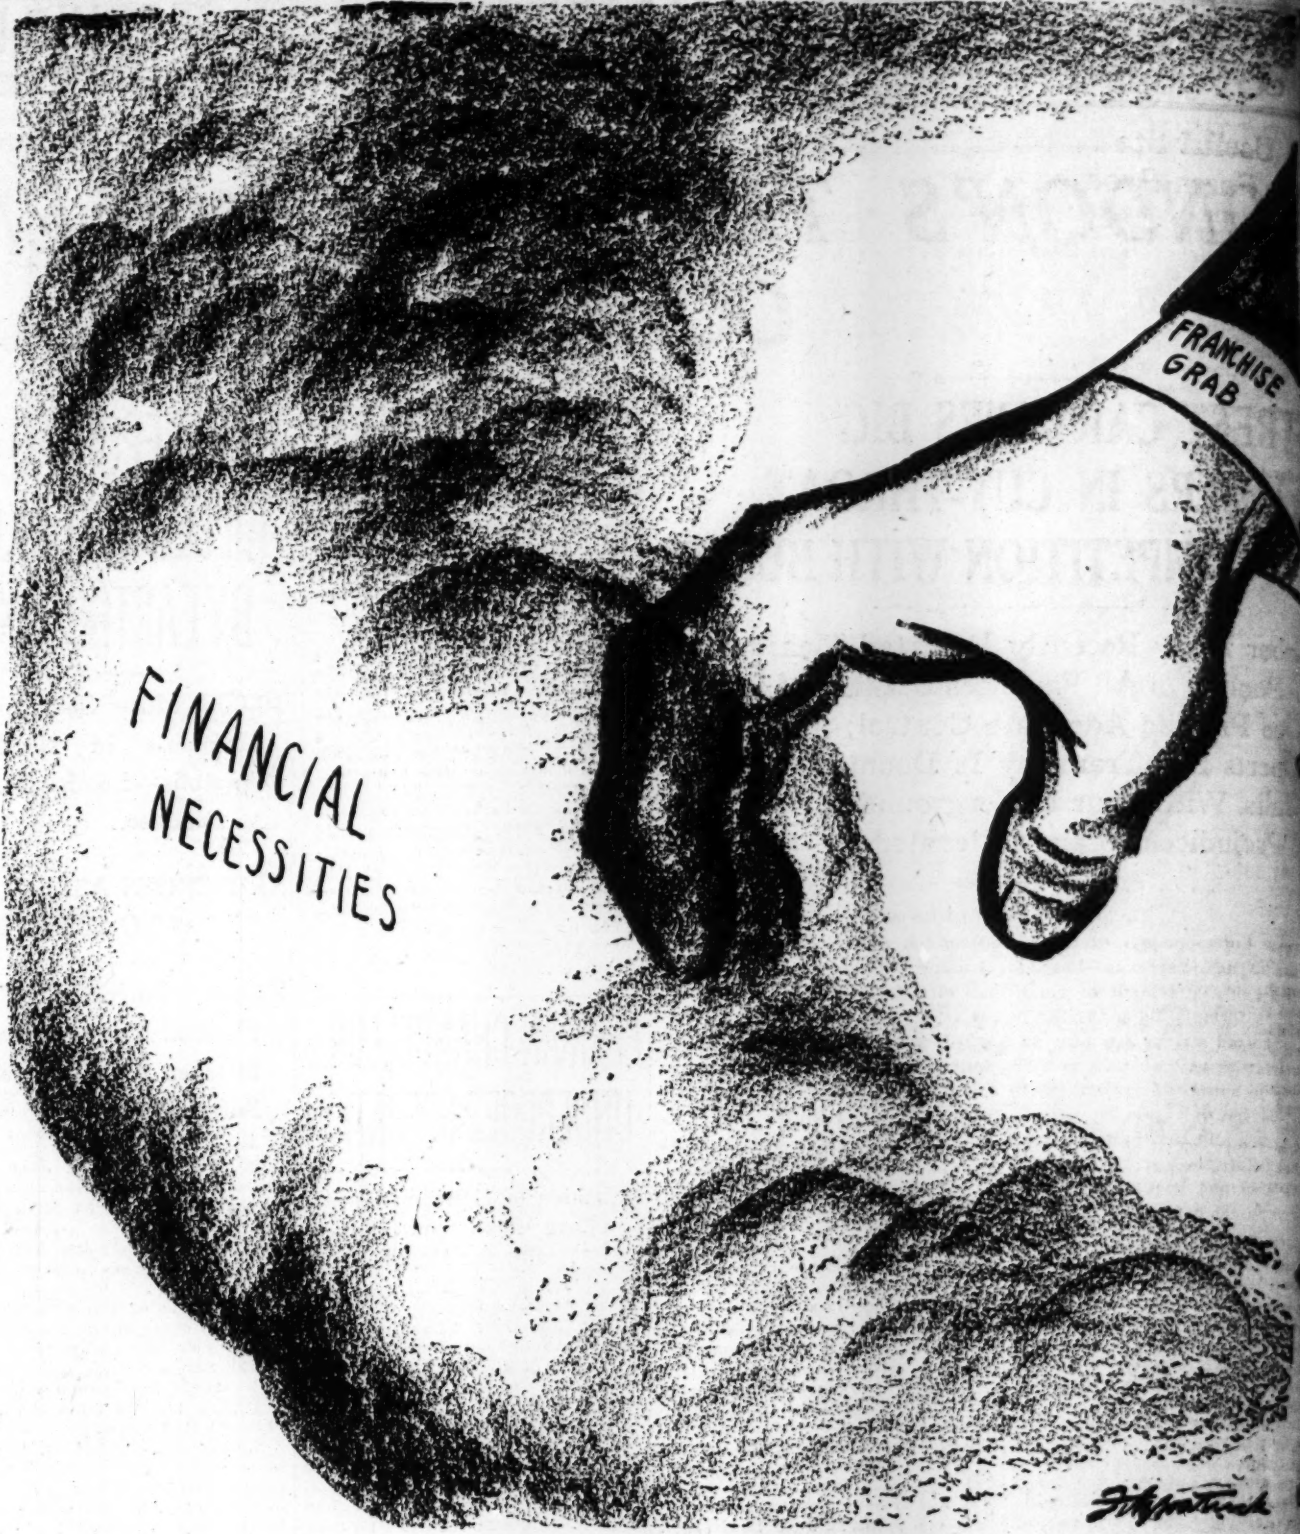

PATRIOT CALLES.

Former President Calles of Mexico is now en route to New York, whence he will sail for France the latter part of the week. He is going to Europe, it is explained, for medical treatment, but other and weightier reasons also influence him. He is making good his pledge, voluntarily given on his retirement from office, never again under any circumstances, to be a candidate for the presidency.

The sincerity of that pledge was tested and proved in the late revolution when he was placed in command of the Government's forces. The rebellion crushed, he resigned his commission and returned to private life. There was no pausing for laudation, no lingering, with alert ear, for the summons to power.

Now in absenting himself for a year, as he plans, he is not only removing himself from political temptation but he is discouraging any movement that misguided public sentiment might organize in his behalf. It is vital to Mexico, he has said, to get rid of the idea of the man on horseback and he is helping in his country to get rid of it with rare patriotism and—in Woodrow Wilson's fine phrase—"with proud punctilio."

So moral are the movies, says Elder Will Hays' press agent, that nobody can do anything shady and "get away with it." It's too bad that the Senate investigating committee which heard the Elder testify about the Sinclair bonds wasn't acting for the pictures.

ONLY A SMOKE SCREEN.

Press Opinion on Ohio Editors' Trial

If newspapers cannot criticize judicial blunders, they will lose one of their most important functions, says Cleveland Plain Dealer; Judge assailed by Kansas City Star, Baltimore Sun and Brooklyn Eagle for acting as complainant, jury and magistrate; Ohio notorious for disregard of rights, Chicago Tribune asserts.

TWO EDITORS AND A JUDGE.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE Plain Dealer congratulates the editors of the Press for bringing a vital public issue before the people and the courts of this country. It congratulates Newton D. Baker for his masterly presentation of the question of the freedom of the press in Judge Walther's court.

The Plain Dealer last fall urged Walther's defeat on the ground that he was unfit for further service on the bench. His decision yesterday strengthens the opinion we then expressed.

Viewed now in the light of subsequent events, Walther's so-called injunction in the Thistle Down race track case was an inexcusable act. It was a right of any newspaper to point out the fact.

Unless newspapers are to be permitted to point out such facts as these—to tell a Judge he blunders when reason shows he blunders—newspapers will lose one of their most important functions. If a Judge can call an editor who dares point the finger of criticism in his direction the whole institution of a free press falls in ruins. And without a free press popular government would be a hazardous experiment if not a failure.

A prospective juror suspected of prejudice for or against a defendant is excused from service. A Judge does not try an ordinary case if there is reason to believe him prejudiced. This is common knowledge and common procedure in all courts. But here is Judge Walther, author of the non-restraining restraining order, accusing two editors of contempt and then sitting in judgment as to whether his own charge is just or not. The Judge was acting within his legal rights, of course.

In our opinion, however, the kind of Judge who would issue the kind of injunction Walther issued is exactly the kind of Judge who would insist on deciding for himself whether those he accuses are guilty or innocent.

Defendants in such a citation are condemned before they're heard. The functions of Judge and prosecutor cannot be combined except to the detriment of justice.

It is Frederick P. Walther rather than the editors of the Press who have been on trial this week. The Judge condemns himself in condemning them.

AN ABUSE OF POWER.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

JUDGES, being human, may be wrong; and how shall they be persuaded to mend their ways if no one is permitted to say they are wrong?

As a matter of fact, the power to enjoin is capable of grave abuse. It has been abused in America, and the tendency to abuse it seems to be growing. If, then, all criticism of such abuses can be suppressed by contempt proceedings, how shall the abuses be checked?

The power to punish for contempt of court was originally given judges to enable them to keep order in their court rooms and to protect them from personal violence at the hands of disappointed litigants and their friends. The Judge who employs this power to suppress public criticism of his official acts is himself guilty of grave abuse of his official privilege.

THE COURTS CAN DO WRONG.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

IT is difficult to see how the editorial can have interfered with the administration of the law, perhaps it may yet aid it. We see no proper escape from Mr. Baker's argument that "the rights of American citizens are that they can criticize their public officers to their heart's content and have the same responsibility which they might have when they criticize those who are not officers, unless the criticism be placed as to obstruct the course of justice in a particular case which is pending and upon which the court is still called to operate at the time the criticism, or libel, is uttered." Anything less than that would reduce America to a judicial dictatorship, in which the ancient crime of lese majesty was replaced by a new doctrine that the courts can do no wrong.

CONTUMPT IN EDITORIAL CRITICISM.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

A PROCEEDING like this is the concern of the whole Fourth Estate, not of the Cleveland Press alone. If in news or comment a newspaper libels a Judge, the Judge has precisely the same recourse as any other citizen. There are criminal laws against libel, and civil process is possible. But by calling an alleged libel "contempt" the Judge makes himself synchronous with the complainant, the jury, the sitting magistrate, the imposer of the sentence, which is something utterly hateful to the spirit of Americanism.

THE JUDGE WHO PROSECUTES.

From the Kansas City Star.

IRRESPECTIVE of the merits of this particular case, it is an extraordinary conduct of justice that permits a Judge to hear a case which he himself has brought, when it concerns criticism made outside his courtroom. Obviously a Judge must have broad powers to enforce order in his court. But the theory which makes him Judge and prosecutor of a case like this requires of him an almost superhuman sense of fair play and violates the American tradition of justice.

If a Judge feels that he has been personally libeled or that the influence of his court has been impaired by criticism, he should be able to bring action before another court. But no law should permit or compel him to hear his own charges.

IT WOULD HAPPEN IN OHIO.

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE incident is not astonishing. Ohio has been under the domination of the Anti-Saloon League so long that constitutional guarantees have lapsed. In a State controlled by the league and its twin, the Klux, free speech would be regarded as contemptuous. It would be punishable by imprisonment. Ohio has yielded to a dominance which has no regard for constitutional rights or lawful methods. As one product it gets the Ohio gang. As another it gets a disregard of American liberties.

WHAT WORRIES THE MISER.

From the Detroit News.

A LOCAL miser is worried about the new small-size paper money. It develops it will take a third more of them to pad a carpet.

WASHINGTON, July 21

THE tariff fight is the Senate has been shaken down sufficiently to reveal the incapacity of Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, and Watson of Indiana, ranking Republican member of the committee and majority floor manager, a sideline, to steer the measure through the Senate.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania emerges as the real Republican leader. The President says nothing about the kind of a tariff bill he desires.

In the face of the White House alliance the views of Smoot and Watson are likely to prevail in the Finance Committee. That will be the beginning, not the end, of the battle.

Smoot and Watson are utterly incapable of withstanding the onslaughts of the Democrats and the progressive Republicans. Some one else must do the job. Who can do it?

The choice is limited. There are only three Republican Senators competent for the task. They are Reed of Pennsylvania, Edge of New Jersey and Bingham of Connecticut.

To an informed Washington that means David A. Reed will have to carry the heaviest part of the load when the tariff fight gets out on the Senate floor.

THE administration has one soldier of ability. If he cannot do the job it cannot be done. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania has no sound political sense and practical strategy tucked away in his head than Smoot, Watson, Edge and Bingham would have if they lived to serve in the Senate as long as Warren of Wyoming.

When the fight gets hot it will have to be Reed to step in and get the administration out of a mess into which the shortcomings of Smoot involve the Republican party and from which Watson, Edge and Bingham have not the wit to extract him. Reed and both will be regretting "The Wadsworth of New York is not in the Senate."

Few men have come to the Senate in recent years to demonstrate such thoroughly courageous talent as has Senator Reed. To say that does not mean that you have to agree with him.

I AM going to write a real story about Commodore Ernest Lee Jahneke of New Orleans, the new Assistant Secretary of the Navy. He is a delight and a refreshing breath in Washington officialdom.

For the moment, I'll content myself with telling how he met an embarrassing official and official problem at a recent White House function.

Secretary Jahneke's naval aid accompanied him to one of Mrs. Hoover's musicales. On arrival there the young naval officer became quite dismayed. He rushed up to Jahneke, saluted and said:

"I have on the wrong kind of pants, sir," said Jahneke, concluding. "Well," echoed the distressed young man. "Well, you can't take your pants off in the White House." Jahneke concluded. In naval gossip, Secretary Jahneke is termed as having offered the "perfect solution" for an "insoluble problem."

A Useful Study of the Farm Problem

AGRICULTURAL REFORM IN THE UNITED STATES. By John D. Black. (McGraw-Hill Book Co.)

At a meeting of President Hoover's newly appointed Federal Farm Board, Dr. Black's book particularly caught the eye of the President. Dr. Black's book is not a treatise on agricultural reform in the United States, but it does run along quite a different line. It is a study of the farm problem, and it is a study that will have its effect on the reader's mind.

This is a book that can be put to a very decided use. Ever since the close of the war there has been an increasing interest in the farm situation. The papers have been full of relief programs for the distressed rural sections. The Senate has had an "agricultural bloc" on its hands. The recent session of Congress. Terms "equalization fee" and "export subsidies" have puzzled many of us. We have needed some special study which would enable us to watch intelligently the day's news in respect to this basic industry. That is the purpose here.

The plan of the book is to state the conditions of agriculture as they are, explain the divers remedial measures proposed, evaluate them as to adequacy to cope with conditions, and suggest the remaining measures that ought to be taken. The discussion is planned to serve beyond the present because the author feels that many years will pass before some of the needed changes are wrought. Dr. Black refrains from writing with finality and assurance. As he says in the beginning, "too many of the records of agriculture are incomplete or uncertain for that. He holds no brief for any particular scheme of farm relief. In his own words he "does not even have a brief for agriculture." It is only the "greatest long-run social and national well-being" that he is thinking about.

The book is in five parts. The first is a statement of the present condition of agriculture and the efforts made to better it, including a broad general outline of the various alternatives of a national policy with respect to agriculture.

Part two analyzes the three kinds of surpluses; part three considers the proposals to raise farm products prices by governmental action, and part four describes the methods of attack, individual and co-operative. The author treats the necessary taxation, utilization, and method of distribution. He is quite clear in his analysis of the farm problem. He is a Harvard professor of agriculture. He is a Harvard professor of agriculture. He is a Harvard professor of agriculture.

A Useful Study of the Farm Problem

CULTURAL REFORM IN THE UNITED STATES. By John D. Black. (McGraw-Hill Book Co.)

FRANKIE GRAB

Meeting of President Hoover's newly appointed Federal Farm Board in Washington. Dr. Black's book particularly good July reading. Naturally, the Agricultural Reform in the United States does not read like fiction, but it does run along quite understandingly, so much so that the reader will have it impressed in his mind that farming is not just a farming after all.

This is a book that can be put to a very decided use. Ever since the close of the war there has been an increasing interest in the farm situation. The papers have been full of relief programs for the distressed rural sections. The Senate has had a "bill" for agricultural reform on its hands. Legislation toward bettering the plight of the farm was the aim of the recent special session of Congress. Terms like "equalization" and "port subsidies" have puzzled many of us. We have needed some special study in the field to put together a study which would enable us to study intelligently the day's news in respect to this basic industry.

That is the purpose here.

The plan is to state the conditions of agriculture as they are, explain the divers remedial measures proposed, evaluate them as to adequacy to cope with conditions, and suggest the remaining measures that ought to be taken. The discussion is planned to serve beyond the present because the author feels that many years will pass before some of the needed changes are wrought. Dr. Black writes from writing with finality and assurance. As he says in the beginning, "too many of the records of agriculture are incomplete or uncertain for that. He does not hold for any particular scheme of farm relief. In his own words he "does not even have a belief for agriculture." It is only the "greatest long-run social and national well-being" that he is thinking about.

The book is in five parts. The first is a statement of the present condition of agriculture and the efforts made to better it, including the general outline of the various alternatives of a national policy with respect to agriculture. Part two analyzes the three kinds of surpluses; part three considers the proposals to raise farm products prices by governmental action, and part four describes other methods of attack, individual and co-operative. The last section treats the adjustments regarded as necessary in production, credit and taxation, transportation, land utilization and marketing.

Despite the fact that Dr. Black's method is to leave the gate open, he is quite willing to make clear-cut statements. For example, "Agriculture has nothing to gain and something to lose from higher duties on manufactured products." Or, "The charge of bureaucracy (price raising by government action) plans must not be taken too seriously. The export debenture plan involves no spheres of private enterprise not now invaded by the tariff system." Behind his views is his long experience as a student of agricultural economics, a professor in which he holds at Harvard.

The objectives of national agricultural policy, he says, should be first, to hasten improvement in the rural scale of living; second, to check the present rapid rate of migration to cities; and third, to maintain a somewhat larger proportion of our population on the land than otherwise would be the case. The approach to the situation, as he sees it, is to raise incomes for only by that means can city migration be checked and living scale increased.—I. L. D.

Appleton has announced for early publication a work entitled "The Adolescent: His Conflicts and Escapes," by two prominent physicians of this city, Dr. Sidney I. Schwab and Dr. Borden S. Veeder. A portion of the advance notice reads as follows: "Dr. Veeder is primarily a neurologist, and his chapters introduce the reader to the physical aspects of the adolescent period, including rapid bodily growth and increase in muscular strength, sexual development, changes, etc. On this foundation, Dr. Schwab takes up the study of the adolescent in his adjustment to society. He shows what mental conflicts arise in the adolescent's efforts to adjust himself to other people and to the necessity of beginning life work. The reader will find a penetrating analysis of the adolescent's problems connected with religion, business ambition, sexual desire, and the like. Many of these problems and the mental conflicts they create are dangerous to the adolescent's future mental health. This book shows what the dangers are and how to combat them. It is not only an important contribution for physicians and psychologists, but a book for the reading of every parent of a growing child. It is scientifically sound and thoroughly written in language that anyone can understand."

The Week's New Films

By NIE

WASHINGTON, July 22.

HOW a lady crook can steal pearl necklaces from the best families in London and still remain a lady is delightfully, if some times indistinctly, told in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," down at Loew's this week. Following very closely the stage version of Frederick Lonsdale's brilliant stage drama, the screen version makes an equally brilliant talking movie. There are times when the lines are a little too bright for the garden run of movie fans and there are times, too, when the voice reproducing machines leave considerable to be desired, but the picture is so finely played, by a cast, with the exception of Norma Shearer almost entirely new to the screen, that it provides one of the best cinema entertainments of the year for the sophisticated audience. Miss Shearer is the girl who comes up from Bloomsbury to mingle with Our Set in London and rob them during a week-end house party. She is something of a flop as a burglar but has better luck with Lord Arthur Dilling, Lord Arthur, one of those interesting bachelors credited with keeping more husbands at home with their wives than any other man in London, meets her in a match in Mrs. Cheyne and the picture ends, quite morally and happily, with the couple on the way to a church. "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne" is decidedly a worth while picture.

Charming Cinemas.

ANOTHER smart talkie of life in Mayfair which also winds up morally after several brief excursions down the Primrose Path is "Charming Sinners" at the Missouri. This is a Somerset Maugham stage comedy which Ethel Barrymore played as "The Constant Wife." One was never quite sure, after seeing Miss Barrymore in the role of the wife, whether she went to Italy with an old sweetheart or not. In the picture version you learn that she did not, for Ruth Chatterton, who plays Miss Barrymore's role most effectively, told the boy friend good-bye at the train and shoves off alone. It's a bright, snappy comedy and, like "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," delightfully acted with Miss Chatterton, Clive Brook, Mary Nolan and William Powell forming a sort of four-sided triangle which turns out to be all square at the finish.

The Four Cocoanuts.

THE four Marx boys who disported themselves several times here in "The Cocoanuts" have made a film-comedy out of the piece and with Mary Eaton and Osvald Davis added to the cast, are clowning on the screen at the Grand Central. Miss Eaton and Mr. Davis, names to conjure with in New York, are not needed to make this the most hilarious entertainment the talking screen has seen. In fact, when other than the Marxmen take a hand in the proceedings the piece is not so good. Fortunately, Groucho, Harpo, Chico and Zeppo are in front of the camera and the sound recorder most of the time, and the audience is kept in such roars of laughter that some of the good lines are lost all together—the takes not yet having made provision for emergencies of this sort. But you might miss half of the laughs and still have enough left for an entire evening's entertainment, for "The Cocoanuts" is making the same hit on the screen that it did on the stage.

Muddy Waters.

THERE are only a few fleeting glances at the Ambassador of the Mississippi in the film but the movie producers, making a picture out of Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia," have called it "The River of Romance." They have not improved otherwise, on the story either and the result is a succession of rather disjointed scenes and some pretty far fetched, if laughable, comedy of life down south before the war. Buddy Rogers, driven from the old plantation because he refused to fight a duel, goes to New Orleans and established a reputation as a killer with the help of Wallace Berry. Then Buddy returns home, bullies the man who wanted to shoot him full of holes in real one and marries Mary Brian. The story is not very convincing in picture form but there are some pretty camera shots and June Collyer, who plays Mary's older sister, is very easy to look upon. On the Ambassador's stage Ed Lowry, who has been away for a few weeks, celebrates his home-coming with a dandy show.

Loot and Lovers.

A RICH young man and a notorious crook who look and talk so much alike that even their sweethearts and their valets can't tell them apart are responsible for the plot of "Masquerade" at the Fox Theater. The world, you know, is full of people who fool their friends and the police with resemblances like that and in this picture, which Louis Joseph Vance wrote as "The Brass Bowl" it takes six or seven reels to finally decide just who's who. You won't be far wrong, however, if you guess, right at the start, that the right man will get the right girl but even knowing that Mr. Fox's customers are in for some pretty exciting experiences while the picture unfolds. Lella Hyams is the girl and Alan Birmingham, new to the screen fans, is the boy who looks so much like the crook that he has to play both parts.

Closing Time for Foreign Mail.

Closing time for parcel post to Germany and full European mails is 3 p. m. today at the main post-office. European mail to be forwarded to New York by air mail will be received up to 3 p. m. tomorrow.

"SPRING IS HERE" AND SO IS CHARLIE RUGGLES

Fast Farce and Rapid Fire Star Please Garden Theater Audience.

SPRING IS HERE, a farce with music by Owen Davis and Richard Rogers, presented at the Garden Theater with the following cast:

Emily Bralley Ethelwynne Bradford
Marie Casco Freely Phillips
Mary Jane Virginia Smith
Peter Bralley Lew Parker
Willie Slade James B. Carson
Betty Bralley Charles Rogers
Betty Bralley Estelle Jayne
Black Clayton Sam Criswell
Terry Clayton Sam Criswell
Rita Conrad Thomas Sternberg
Rita Conrad Thomas Sternberg

THE Garden Theater went into its fifth week last night presenting "Spring Is Here," a rapid moving farce with music and introducing to St. Louis Charles Ruggles as the star. Ruggles is playing the same role in this Owen Davis piece that he created in New York. He is to remain here for two weeks to take part, next Sunday night, with Louise Brown, in "Oh, Kay."

The music of "Spring Is Here," supplied by Richard Rogers, is not very fetching but it is largely incidental to the action of the play, which is put across by Ruggles and Virginia Smith at breakneck speed. When the Garden's new star is on the stage the laughs come so continuously that the audience scarcely has time to catch its breath. With Ruggles in the wings most of the rest of the fun is supplied by Miss Smith in a role which was not meant to be the leading feminine one.

The story tells, in farce fashion, of a testy old father who attempts to bring up his two daughters after his own ideas and to marry them to men of his own choosing. He fails in his plans, but the girls get the men the spectators would have picked and everything ends happily, just as it should in summer musical shows.

Estelle Jayne is the daughter around whom most of Ruggles' troubles revolve. Miss Smith is the other one. Her husband, a dancer, with Lew Parker in the second act, was the high spot of the evening's entertainment.

Charles Ruggles is an experienced and sure fire farceur who wises up the way through the piece which, incidentally, is being shown here for the first time outside of New York. He is not a comedian of the same school as Leon Errol, whose place he takes as the Garden's leading comedian, but in his own way is equally as funny.

The rest of the cast meets the not very exacting requirements of "Spring Is Here" and the Garden chorus adds to the evening's fun with its fast stepping.

VAN AND SCHENCK STARS

OF GOOD BILL AT ST. LOUIS

Kenneth Harlan and Billy Glason

Featured, Movie 14, "Divorce Made Easy."

Van and Schenck, who are to vaudeville what ham and eggs are to breakfast, are singing at the St. Louis Theater this week at the head of a uniformly meritorious show. Audiences Saturday and Sunday couldn't get enough. They were recalled repeatedly.

There isn't a weak spot on the whole bill. The Transford Sisters, openers, sing to their own accompaniment on banjos and xylophones; Bobby May starts as a harmonica player but finishes with clever juggling; Kenneth Harlan of the movies appears in a playlet in which he, as a young husband, reads the riot act to his bride and makes her like it—a sort of modern "Taming of the Shrew," and Billy Glason, with a new unusual line of patter, provides laughs aplenty. The overture by Meyer Friedman's house orchestra is "China Boy."

"Divorce Made Easy," a Douglas MacLean farce, machine-made but funny, is the sound picture; also there are pictures of the recent Sonnenberg-Lewis wrestling match.

Los Angeles Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, July 22.

Other city is so glibly for what the Los Angeles calls "the cult racket." It is a paradise for the faddist or the health goer. Indeed, any sect spreading some new brand of abracadabra is sure of a following.

Every variety of fortune teller, crystal gazer or religious prophet is hailed with a huzzah. They open salons along such Fifth avenue-like boulevards as Wilshire and their clientele is not recruited entirely from "below stairs"—but from the fashionable drawing rooms.

Those who profess to know say the craze to pierce the veil of the future spawned among motion picture folk. Every newcomer to the studios came hugging a Big Dream and was an easy mark for the charlatans who professed an ability to read the stars, coffee grounds or what have you.

People of prominence, socially and financially out here will often confess with a guilty little giggle they have just been to an astrological or palmistry seance. They do not believe in it, they say. Still they continue to go from one to another.

As a result of this collective urge for mysticism the streets are dotted with queerly dressed characters. One sees the swarthy swami in turban and flowing robe, the long bearded, shaven and hatless John the Baptist with the burning staff, the zealot, the unwashed pulpit and the soap box ranters.

Most of the lesser lights in the fanatical flock make their rendezvous Pershing Square in the heart of the city. In the early morning or evening these odd and often cracked creatures blown from all corners of the earth gather and babble their isms.

They are harmless and never molest the police, in the motley assortment, too, are hobo poets, seedy soldiers of fortune, trailers of revolutions and sunnily other picturesque vagabonds who, touched by an impulse of angelism, are always on the march.

ASHLEY WOOD is here to novelize the film folk—and all are well.

55,000 OPERA RECORD SET BY 'ROSE MARIE'

"Prince of Pilsen" for Eighth Week at Municipal Theater Opens Tonight.

"Rose Marie" presented at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park last week for the third time in three years, attracted the largest attendance of any week of the current season. More than 55,000 persons saw the seven act performance. Total attendance during the last 7 weeks is estimated at 250,000.

For the eighth week of the present opera term, beginning tonight, the Municipal Opera Association will offer "The Prince of Pilsen," an operetta which has ranked among the most popular at the outdoor theater. It was previously produced here in 1923 and 1924.

Flora Ann will play the leading role of Hans Wagner, Cincinnati brewer, who, on a European jaunt, is mistaken for the Prince of Pilsen. All of the other opera principals, including Miss Carolyn Thomson, the new prima donna, will have parts in the production.

The Carondelet Lions Club will make its annual visit to the Municipal Opera tomorrow night, having taken a block of more than 200 seats.

MOONSHINE CAKE SUITABLE FOR SUMMER EVENINGS

Appropriate at Least in Name for After Dark Party Refreshments.

The pendulum swings back even in the realm of cookery. We have been refreshing ourselves for many years with sunshine cake. Now we are offered moonshine cake as a piece de resistance for summer evening frolics.

Moonshine cake, which is also a cake of the sponge or butterless variety, is made with one cup egg whites, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cream of tartar, one cup flour, seven egg yolks, one and one-half cups sugar and one teaspoon almond extract.

Add salt to egg whites and beat until light. Sift in cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and add three tablespoons of whites. To remaining whites add sugar sifted thoroughly. Add almond extract and combine mixture. Bake in angel cake pan in moderate oven one hour.

A nice frosting for this cake is Maraschino icing which is made with one and one-half cups sugar, one-half teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half cup water, two egg whites, three tablespoons Maraschino flavoring and one-third cup shredded, toasted almonds. Put sugar, cream of tartar and water in saucepan and bring to boiling point. Beat egg whites until stiff and beat in one tablespoon boiling syrup. Add four more tablespoons syrup, one at a time, beating constantly. Roll remainder of syrup until thick, add flavoring, beat until consistency to spread. Garnish with almonds.

Worthwhile Device.

Heat muffin pans before putting in the muffin mixture. It will make the muffins lighter.

MINT TO THE FORE AS A SEASONING

Refreshing Flavor and Attractive Appearance Have an Appetite Appeal.

A little mint added to fruits and cooked vegetables, is by no means a new idea, but it is an increasingly popular one this summer. Mint is an appetizing flavor and a sprig of mint, used as a garnish on a dish, appeals both to the eye and the appetite.

These are the reasons why mint is being used in this season.

For instance a most alluring quick dessert may be made with pineapple, raspberries and mint. It can be prepared in a jiffy. The juice of the pineapple will dissolve the sugar necessary to sweeten the fruit and leaves and sprigs of mint will supply a flavor and a cool loveliness that are most appealing. Several other suggestions for the use of fresh mint in cooked foods include:

Minted Green Peas.
The best way to cook green peas is to use as little water as possible, plenty of butter and add a lump of sugar and a sprig of mint—but not too much. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until the peas are so tender that they almost melt in the mouth. A "piquant" sauce goes well with peas. Lightly fry a small chopped onion with a little butter, add a pint of peas (hot) and dredge in a good dessertspoonful of flour. Add half gill each of stock and vinegar, season with salt and pepper and stir all carefully together for a few minutes, then serve.

Iced Mint Fruit Soup.
An expert dietitian recommends an iced mint fruit soup, using half a can of crushed pineapple, two cups of water, half a glass of mint jelly and a teaspoon of arrowroot for thickening. She tops this soup off with a sprig of fresh mint.

Mint-Ade.
Take one quart water, two cups sugar, one and one-half cups lemon juice, one bunch of fresh mint, chopped, grated rind of three lemons and two quarts ginger ale. Make syrup by boiling water and sugar together for 10 minutes in a covered kettle. Add lemon juice, water, mint and lemon rind to hot syrup. When cool, add ginger ale.

Minted Sandwich Filling.
Mint is also the basis for a new sandwich filling. Take three-fourths cup mint leaves, one glass currant jelly, one package cream cheese and two tablespoons honey lemon salad dressing. To cream cheese and dressing mix thoroughly; add jelly and finely chopped mint. When blended spread on buttered slice of whole wheat or bran bread. Sprinkle with one tablespoon chopped pecans.

Glazed Carrots With Mint.
In just enough water to prevent burning, cook three cups of sliced carrots until tender. Not more than one-fourth cup of water should remain at the end of the cooking.

Season with three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons sugar, salt and a dash of nutmeg. Cook about three minutes.

Sprinkle with one tablespoon finely minced mint leaves and serve at once.

Mint Sherbet.

Boil together one quart of water, and one-half pound of sugar five minutes. Remove leaves from ten good sized stalks of mint. Wash carefully, chop fine, then pound to a pulp. Work this gradually into hot syrup, let stand until cool. Strain, add juice of two lemons and freeze.

ANOTHER WAY TO BAKE HAM

Recommended if the Meat Is to Be Served Hot for Dinner.

Soak a ham over night. When ready to cook make a dough of thick paste of flour and water and spread over the ham, encasing it completely. Set on rack in baking pan into a hot oven to cook the paste, then lower the temperature and let cook about five hours.

About one hour before cooking is done, make a hole in the paste and pour in a cup of hot cider, repeat this twice if needed, or use the liquid that drips into the pan. When tender, remove crust and skin from three-fourths of the ham, leaving one-fourth of the skin about the shank bone. Brush the skinned portion with beaten yolk of egg and sprinkle with cracker crumbs mixed with sugar and return to oven to brown. Serve hot or cold.

Nice Fish Loaf.
Smoked halibut makes an excellent fish loaf by using the pickled-over fish and combining it with rice, egg yolks, seasonings, milk or white sauce, together with sufficient gelatine to give texture and body. Such a loaf can easily be made in the forenoon and, when served with a garnish of green pepper or parsley and sliced lemon, makes an attractive as well as an economical and nourishing main dish.

Requisites of a Cake.
Cakes should be light and tender and of uniform thickness, with no cracks in the crust. They should have a fine, velvety, even-grained texture, moist but not sticky. The crust should be a delicate brown, tender, thin, and somewhat crisp.

FAVORITE DROP CAKES

Have an Appetite Appeal and Are Easily and Quickly Made.

Among the small drop cakes easy to make are hermits. They take one-third cup shortening, one cup brown sugar, two eggs, one-fourth cup thick sour milk or sour cream, one-half cup raisins, six English walnuts, one and three-fourths cups flour, one tablespoon cocoa, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon cloves and one teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream shortening: add sugar and cream again. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add sour milk or cream with raisins, which have been steamed and chopped, and chopped walnuts. Stir well and fold in sifted dry ingredients. Drop from teaspoon on cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees), 20 to 25 minutes.

PEACHES ARE BASIS FOR DAINTY DISHES

They Combine Splendidly With Almost All Other Articles of Food.

While peaches are less plentiful, serve them in combination dishes. For instance, serve peach custard tartlets tonight for dessert.

To make them make a rich pie dough, slightly sweetened.

Take one and one-half cups sliced peaches, drained, one-third cup sugar, one cup milk, two egg yolks, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon vanilla, two egg whites.

Roll out the dough thin and cover inverted muffin tins, prick generously and bake in a moderate oven. When they are almost done, cool, remove them and put them in a shallow pan. Mix the peaches, sugar, milk, cinnamon and slightly beaten egg yolks together, add the vanilla and fill the shells. Bake them until the custard is thickened. Then top with the beaten egg whites mixed with one tablespoon of sugar and brown in the oven until a golden brown.

Peach Cup is a refreshing hot weather beverage. To make it take two cups sliced fresh peaches, one cup sugar, one cup water, two oranges, diced, one-half cup diced pineapple, juice of one lemon and whipped cream.

Make a syrup of water and sugar boiled together for five minutes and cooled. Pour this over the fruit cut up, and allow to stand in the ice box for one hour. Serve in small glass cups either garnished with whipped cream or plain.

Fairy salad is a dessert salad meant to be eaten at the close of a de luxe company dinner or luncheon served on a warm afternoon or evening.

The dish is simply delicious and as dainty as the most particular hostess could wish.

To make fairy salad take six large peaches, one-half cup powdered sugar, one cup pecan meats, one cup whipping cream, one-fourth cup sherry flavoring, one head lettuce and candied rose leaves.

Slice peaches, sprinkle with sugar and nutmeats. Whip cream until stiff and fold in Sherry flavor. Serve on lettuce, garnished, if possible, with candied rose leaves.

Peach Betty is a tempting sweet. To make it have ready two cups stewed peaches and two cups bread crumbs.

Arrange alternate layers of the bread crumbs and fruit, spreading the layers with four tablespoons butter, one-half cup brown sugar, grated rind and juice of one orange mixed with one-half cup water, one-half teaspoon ground spices and one-third teaspoon cinnamon.

Cover and bake until delicately brown. Serve with a hard sauce or a fruit syrup sauce.

Peach Dessert.
Bake a rich biscuit dough over timbal molds and when cold fill with sweetened sliced peaches over which has been poured a "little orange juice; serve topped with whipped cream.

Peach Iceing.
Drain and mash peaches through a sieve; add sugar and stir until dissolved; then add egg white and beat until fluffy.

VARY THE CEREAL COURSE

Very Readily Accomplished by Adding Dried Fruits.

A good way of varying the cereal course and at the same time adding healthful minerals to the diet is to occasionally use raisins, dates, or figs with the cereal. Allow about 12 raisins, or three or four dates, or a fig for each serving. Cut dates or figs in pieces.

If the cereal is hot, stir the fruit into it five minutes before serving. For cold cereal, simply sprinkle the fruit over each portion.

Generally, no sugar is needed when these dried fruits are used, and the iron and other minerals they supply are a valuable addition to the family dietary.

Holiday Ice Cream.

Prepare a rich boiled custard from three cups of rich milk, three egg yolks, one and a half cups of sugar and a few grains of salt. When thick and smooth remove from the fire, cool and fold in teaspoonful of vanilla extract and one cup of chilled double cream, whipped solid. Freeze slowly and when the mixture begins to congeal stir in half a pound of shredded fresh marshmallows and one cup of peach pulp, well sugared. Continue to freeze until firm and smooth.

Raspberry Fruit Cup.

Take one quart raspberries, one and one-half quarts water, two cups sugar, juice of four lemons and grated rind of one lemon.

Make a syrup of sugar and water; wash raspberries and push through fine sieve. Add lemon juice and grated rind. Chill before serving.

A Summertime Hint.

Cream soups made with fresh vegetables are appetizing and delicate for summer meals, especially luncheons. They have an added appeal, however, when served with crisp cereal flakes or with freshly popped corn. Try these occasionally instead of crackers or croutons.

TASTY CHEESE SANDWICH

A wholesome tasty sandwich is made with one package cream cheese, four tablespoons salad dressing, two tablespoons green peppers, two stuffed olives, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons butter and 12 slices rye bread.

Make a paste of cheese and salad dressing; add finely chopped green pepper and olives with salt. Spread between slices of buttered rye bread and wrap individually in waxed paper.

TROTSKY CRITICISES EXCLUSION BY ENGLAND

In Letter to Labor Paper, Exile Lays It to "Stupid Fancies" Invented by Secret Police.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)
LONDON, July 22.—The exclusion of Leon Trotsky, the exiled Russian leader, continues to plague the Labor government in view of the Liberal opposition to denial of the right of political asylum, and the situation is made more piquant by a letter of protest from Trotsky to the Daily Herald which is the Labor party's official organ.

The paper prints the letter on its front page, but refrains from venturing any editorial comment. Trotsky wrote from Constantinople: "Just as I received a note from the British Consul here stating that he has yet no answer to my request I saw in the local press a short paragraph saying that the Secretary of the House of Commons had the Government, after having carefully examined the circumstances of the case, has decided not to give permission for me to visit England."

"Now I wonder what the British Government has examined carefully. Surely not the reasons advanced by me when I asked the British visa. Do they esteem that I and my wife are not ill or not ill enough to get the permission to visit England? Do they believe that I am here in the better conditions to pursue my literary work? "But as far as I know there was no examination, careful or not, of these points. What then was examined carefully? The stupid fancies which are sent one day from Constantinople, another from Riga, and are running through the reactionary press in every country—those fancies I have expressed several times in letters you so kindly publish and are so ludicrous that they can make laughing every man who has a knowledge of the international labor movement."

"To speak frankly, I shall say such fancies are not of newspaper correspondents, but that they are invented and thrown into the circulation by secret police agencies, whose work is now well known and was revealed in a famous circumstance by the false Zinovieff letter, a forgery of which British Labor was the victim, but it seems as if those agencies were still able to influence governments and public opinion. Governments change, but the secret police remains and finally leads."

GIRL DROWNS, TWO BOYS HELD

Body of Edith Seward Found in Pit Near Lawrenceville, Ill.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill., July 22.—Coroner Mangum of Lawrence County today began an investigation into the death of Miss Edith Marie Seward, 14 years old, who was found drowned this morning in a gravel pit one mile east of here.

Her sister told the Coroner and Sheriff James that she, the dead girl and two youths had gone to the pit Saturday night, and that the younger girl had fallen into the water. Her absence was not noticed until some time later, she said, and they did not report her disappearance until last night. The body was unnotified by more than 100 bathers Sunday. The two young men, Albert Latson and Oscar Stone, are held in jail.

where the rights of citizens to security from depredations of the liquor traffic are ignored, the Federal Government has the unpleasant duty to intervene, but it is in all cases an unfortunate necessity and greatly to be deplored."

The statement says "it is not at once apparent" why the Wickersham's suggestions "should be considered revolutionary."

What Wickersham Proposed.

Mr. George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Crime Commission, addressed a letter to the twenty-first annual Governors' conference, making certain suggestions in regard to the enforcement of the prohibition laws which seem to have been considered sensational, the board relates.

"In brief, Mr. Wickersham suggested, (1) enactment in all the states of prohibition enforcement laws, and (2) a recognized definition of Federal and State responsibilities in prohibition enforcement, with the Federal Government limiting its activities to a discharge of purely Federal functions and the states doing the detail police and judicial work necessary for the suppression of the illegal retail liquor trade."

"The Board of Temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the other dry organizations and leaders have consistently recognized the division between the Federal Government and the states, of responsibility in regard to prohibition enforcement, a division which is clearly and naturally indicated by our form of government."

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

GIVE HER A CHANCE.

WOMEN spend eighty-five per cent of the money that is earned in the United States, yet there is no country where women need to learn the value of intelligent spending so greatly as here, Mrs. Bessie Q. Mott of New York tells the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, meeting in Michigan this week.

Mrs. Mott, it seems to us, chose an odd audience to lecture about wise money-spending. If any woman understands this art, it is the business or professional woman, who probably began to support herself on from $15 to $25 a week. When this girl marries, she has had rigorous preparation for handling family finances. She knows, for example, the pure fallacy of the old adage that two can live as cheaply as one. This is why, in such an increasing number of instances, the newly wedded business girl refuses to give up her old job. Having lived on a small salary herself, she doesn't want to exploit the small salary of her young husband. She'd rather help him earn an income large enough to be spent wisely.

And many American women without previous business training have learned to run their homes on budgets. The high prices and the public emphasis on thrift, during the war years, educated housewives. That little $1,800-a-year clerk in Washington, who paid a tribute to his wife at a public hearing not long ago for her skill in spreading his tiny income over the family needs—"how in God's name she does it, I don't know," he almost wept—must echo the sentiments of many a thoughtful married American. The thrifty housewife in this country is as much a reality as the extravagant one.

WE have a notion that, for many a wasteful feminine spender, one if not two men are to blame. The first of these may be her father. The other may be her husband.

Every girl, before she is married, ought to get the practical financial training involved in living on what she earns. But if that is not possible, she ought at least to be put on a definite allowance from her childhood days, and never be permitted to wheedle for more. The trouble with many an affectionate father is that he gives his daughter a fixed sum for spending money, perhaps a fixed dress allowance—and then, in addition, helps her out of every financial hole, allows himself to be teased and flattered and "held up" continually for more cash.

No girl who acquires funds in such an unsystematic and unbusinesslike fashion is going to stop, look and listen to her conscience before she orders what her husband cannot afford. She grows up as a lady-like grafter and gold-digger, and she exploits her husband, as she exploited her father, for all the traffic will bear. She never has had to learn the lesson of wise, economical buying. Her father should have taught it to her.

For another type of extravagant wife her husband is to blame, responsible—because he never tells her exactly how much (or, rather, how little) he is making. We know more than one Mrs. Spendthrift who simply is living in a fool's paradise. Maybe her husband earned a good salary when they married, but had to change his job and take less. Maybe he's always been a salary liar—always put up the bluff that he earned more than he did. Certainly, if he gives his wife the impression that he's a $10,000-a-year man, he can't blame her for spending on that basis—even though he may actually earn but $7,000 and she therefore be keeping him in debt.

GIVE women a chance to learn to spend wisely! Give daughters a chance—and wives. Be frank with them in money matters. Show them how to budget, how to save. When the instruction comes from the man a woman loves, she will accept it willingly unless she is the world's most selfish pig.

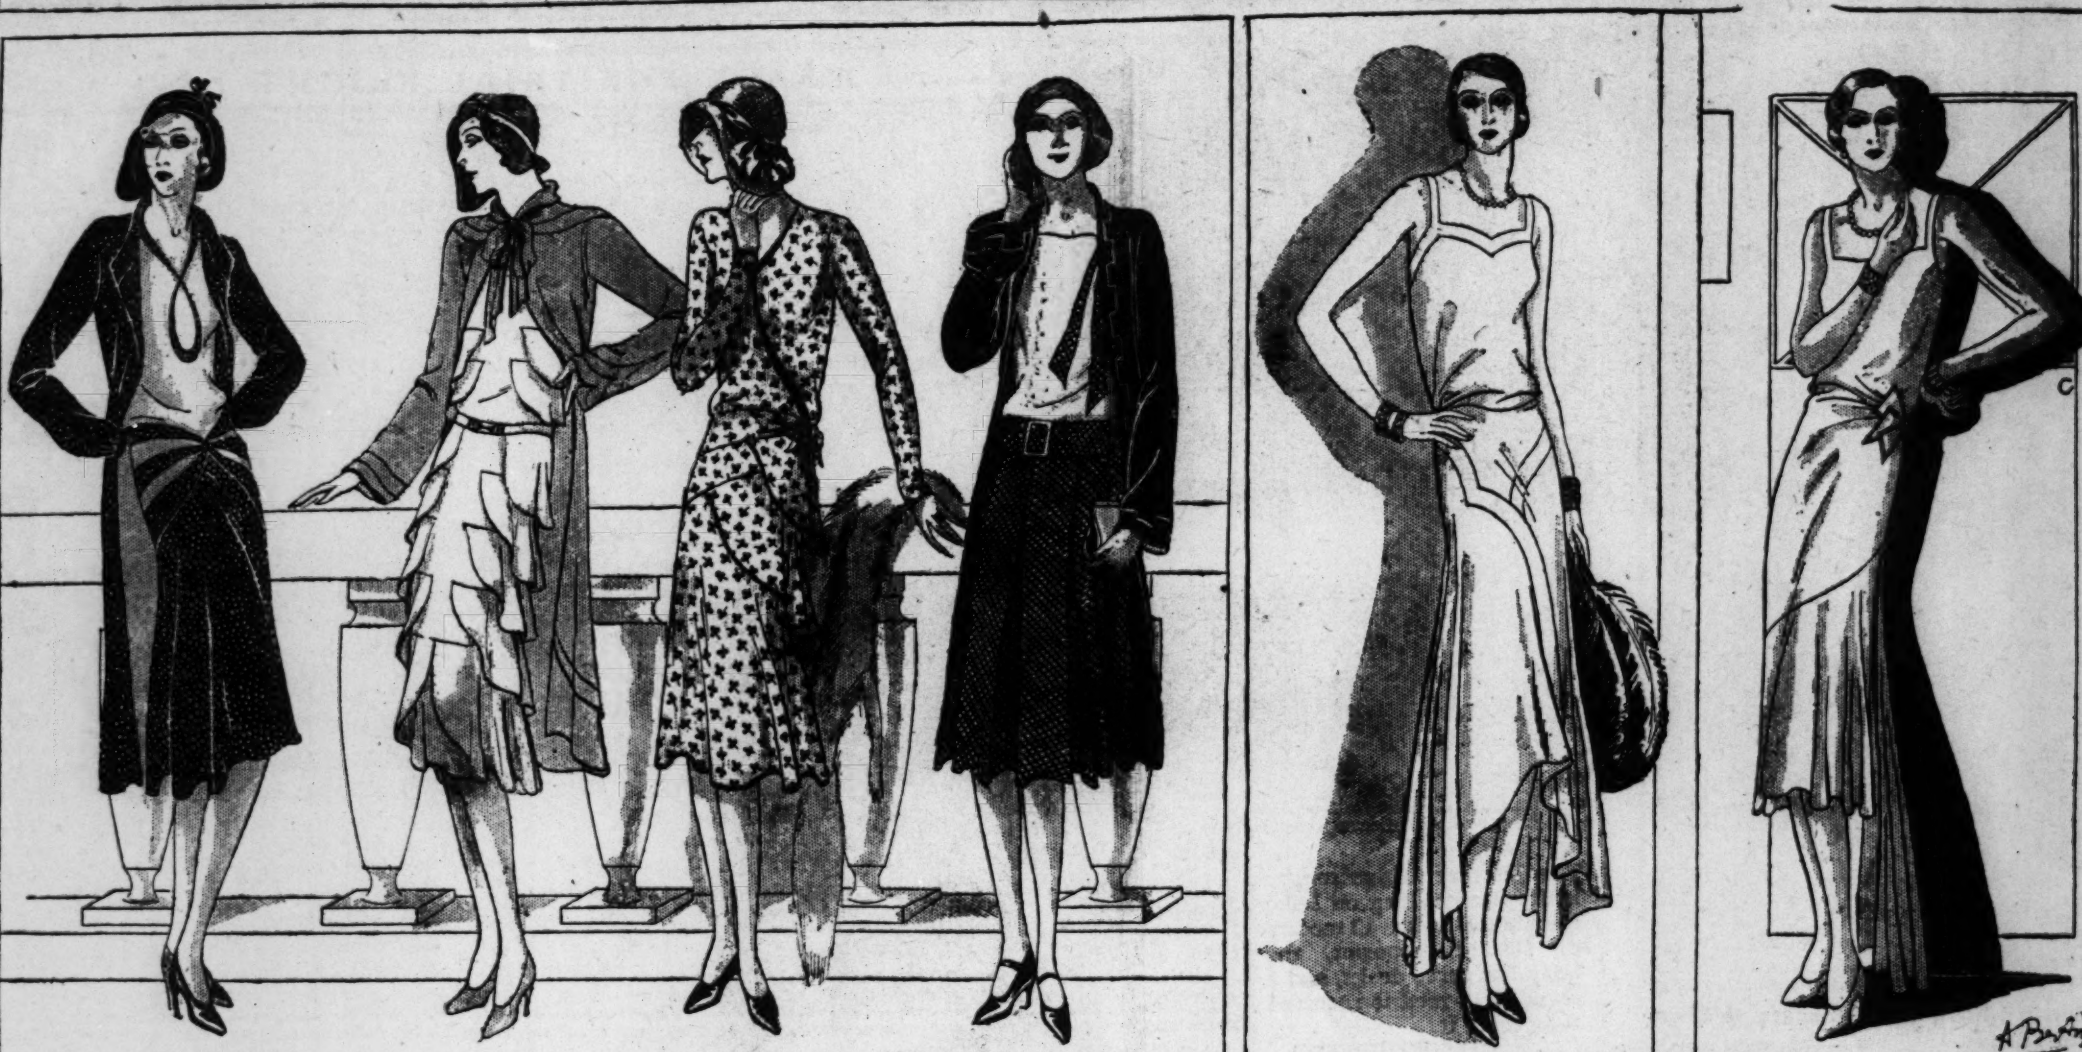

The woman who learns economy is, we believe, more economical than most men have the patience and self-denial to be. Good women shoppers know values and hunt till they find them—the average man is helpless in the hands of a haberdasher's clerk. Moreover, he treats himself to personal indulgences and services, eschewed by either a business woman earning the same salary, or his own thrifty wife. Really, when it comes to money-spending, the woman of it is like the little girl with the curl—when she is good she is very, very good; when she is bad she is horrid!

Stuffed Flank Steak

Pound flour into a two-pound flank steak until flattened. Spread with equal portions of seasoned bread crumbs and mushrooms and tie like a jelly roll. Lay in a Dutch oven and add one-half cup bacon drippings, two cups chopped onions and cook until well browned on all sides. Then add one and one-half cups water, one bay leaf and the juice of one lemon. Cover pan and cook slowly for two hours. Thicken the liquor for gravy before serving.

Fashions Must Be Adapted to Needs, Says Paris

This coat in printed fabric to match the dress is very chic this season. It is made in a multi-colored crepe de chine on a navy blue ground with a plain blouse matching a color of the design.

Tulle green crepe de chine makes this charming afternoon gown with its clever overlapping flounces en forme. It is worn with a coat of a darker shade of green with flat curved bands following the movement of the flounces.

A pretty use of the one-sided basque in this dress of navy blue print on a white ground. The corsage has a crossover movement to follow the lines of the basque and is slightly bloused.

A black coat lined with black and white check, a check skirt with wide box pleats and a buckle belt and one of the new tuck-in blouses strapped with check material makes this attractive three-piece ensemble.

A new shade of violine mauve crepe de chine is chosen for this graceful evening gown with horizontal pleats at the waistline and bands of strapping on the hips that follow the lines of the décolletage.

White satin is a favorite that dies hard. It looks very much of the moment in this model with its diagonal circular flounce, square panel and touch of strass embroidery holding the folds at the waist.

Tendency to Raise Waistline Attractive For the Slim Woman But "Stouts" Still Exist

By Douillet-Doucet.

PARIS, July 12.—Since the war there has never been so much variety in fashion as there is at the present time. This is just as it should be, for women can never look their best if they try blindly to follow one model.

There is a great tendency to raise the waistline. This is very pretty on a young slim figure. But it does not suit all women. Stout women exist, and they have the right to be considered in fashion.

For them we make a draped corsage and do not put the waistline quite so high. Nothing has a more slimming effect than the corsage that is loosely draped with a cross-over movement, and it looks very well with the uneven hemline of today.

The very thin woman, however, is better in the bolero corsage. It gives a souplesse, that is very coming to figures that could bear a little more flesh with advantage. The same applies to the blouse.

But this is on the whole easier to wear. When it is made with a V décolletage it is suitable to women a little on the plump side. It cannot be repeated too often that souplesse, loose folds, what the French call a "dégage" effect, is best for every figure. That is why a dress is always better when it has been worn a few times. Never put on a perfectly new dress when you want to make a really good impression. Clothes fall naturally to the lines of the figure when they have been worn a little, even when they have been carefully pressed. They take on something of the personality of the wearer. It might almost be said that a dress grows more becoming the more it is worn.

THAT is why it is not always the women who have the most clothes who are the best dressed. Indeed, those who have only a limited budget are apt to make fewer mistakes when choosing their dresses. It matters so much to them that their choice should be right that they never order a gown just because it happens to please them, but because they feel sure it is just that dress that suits them and will look best on them for all the occasions on which they are likely to require it.

But in generalizing, we have wandered a little from the actual fashions of today. We have a great deal about the long skirt because there is a trend towards length. This house, however, is the opinion that really long skirts all round will appear generally, at any rate, not in the near future.

There will be less floating panels because these have been overdone and when one sees too many of them they give an effect of untidiness. Length is shown in most of the new coming gowns, but there is shortness to reveal the ankles somewhere. Women have realized that pretty, slim ankles are very attractive against a background of length, and they are not willing to bow to an arbitrary rule of fashion that veils such an asset at the mere price of having something for the moment sensationally new.

DIPPING hemlines are not pretty with day coats so the hemline of the afternoon dress is usually straight. This is especially the case in the charming printed ensembles that are such a feature of the present summer fashions. You see many unlined coats of printed fabrics this season. Some of them long, some short and others in the semi-three-quarter length that has become a popular mode. With these latter especially a straight hemline looks trim and attractive.

The result of this coat fashion has brought a practical element into the summer mode, which might have been a little too eccentric had the irregular hemline become too pronounced in dresses for the daytime.

The smartest summer coats are not trimmed with fur. This is a fashion that has been exaggerated until it has bordered on the ridiculous. A woman who wears a coat in the summer with a great lynx or fox collar that nearly buries her head looks utterly absurd.

We saw one in the rue de la Paix the other day with a coat trimmed with fur in such a manner that she might have been setting off for a journey to the North Pole. In the brilliant sunshine it looked positively funny. Men turned around to stare at her in amazement. No doubt she thought they were bewildered by her startling chic. Nothing could be farther from the truth. They were astonished that a woman could be so devoid of common sense.

THE ordinary man in the street is a good judge of fashions. He knows when a woman is smart though he would be unable to tell you why. Women who can persuade their husbands to help them choose their clothes are doing a very clever thing. Men may not know anything about fashions, but they do know when a woman of whom they are fond looks nice. They have a kind of instinctive good taste and a sense of line that serves as a very good guide when helping a woman to choose clothes. American women are superbly creative and lend themselves remarkably well to the graceful fashions of today. Their good figures show off Paris fashions to advantage, and their habit of careful grooming adds to beauty.

Chic and elegant women are a great inspiration to dress designers. Not that they themselves think out or evolve fashions. There are few women except professional dressmakers who would have either the knowledge or the inclination to do this. It is their personality and manner of wearing clothes that helps us. When designing the Douillet-Doucet collection and passing the dresses in review we often think—but there is no dress that would exactly suit Madame X, who is always so supremely elegant in her delightful simplicity. We then set to work to create a model that would be accompany each dress. The chic woman has just the right shoes and stockings, the right shade of rouge, the right jewels and bag—in fact, every possible detail is just as it should be. Then a dress worn in suitable surroundings has always more life than one that is displayed in a showroom, however fine that showroom may be. It is just like a picture hung in

Gas for Heating Is Cheaper

The recent readjustment of gas rates brings into effect a new low rate for house heating. Now the cost of this luxurious comfort is very little, if any, more than the cost of other and less efficient fuels. When you consider the many conveniences and advantages that only gas affords it is the most economical fuel you can use.

Surely it's worth something to be free from heating troubles and annoyances. No fuel deliveries to attend to . . . no fuel storage to bother with . . . no ash disposal to look after. Nothing to do but enjoy clean, automatic, worry-less comfort.

The cost of heating your home with gas is probably less than you think it is. It depends upon the size, location and insulation of the building. An expert estimate on the cost of heating your home will be made at your request. This service is free and incurs absolutely no obligation. We're making it as easy as possible for you to determine the cost of heating your home with gas. Just telephone CEntral 3800, Station 380.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

By Helen Rowland

SAD, BUT TRUE

MODERN bachelors, like modern hotels, are becoming more and more fireproof, all the time.

Some husbands and wives don't "speak the same language," until they begin bawling each other out. The only time when there is perfect understanding between them is when they are enjoying a misunderstanding.

When Mrs. Corey offered that Bourbon prince only $200,000 for "cigarettes and things," she forgot that part of the "overhead" of every foreign princeling or duke is a cabaret singer—and blondes are expensive.

Every woman is so busy doing something to attract attention, these days, that the only way to stand out in the crowd and really catch a man's eye is to do nothing at all.

An "understanding woman," in a man's opinion, is one who is just brilliant enough to understand his dumbest jokes, and just dull enough to think them brilliant.

When two or three women are gathered together, they have to turn the radio OFF, in order to get the most exciting part of the "broadcasting" and not to miss the low-down.

When women were clinging skirts, men liked clinging women; now, neither of them seems to want anything that binds them, hangs onto them or has the least weight. Something light and fluffy—and no trouble or responsibility—is the big demand.

Some married women just TALK themselves out of a life job. (Copyright, 1929.)

For the Love

by Jeffery F.

Synopsis: Sir Richard, accused as murderer of his cousin at the inquest, and facing a hopeless mass of evidence given by perjuring enemies, decides to quit his hiding-place in the inn. The next day Helen D'Arcy sees a vaguely familiar country youth working on the lawn about her home. In answer to her surprised question, the rustic youth says his name is Dick—Dick Fullstone, the new "odd man." Viscount Brocklehurst comes to press his hopeless suit. Walking across the lawn with Helen, they discover a ragged slip of paper—a note—which Brocklehurst grasps eagerly and starts to read its contents when Helen demands it.

A SINISTER CLUE.

RELUCTANTLY, the Viscount passed the note to Helen's hand, and laboriously she deciphered the awkward scrawl: "I write this to inform you that I am now certainly known that upon the murderer's pistol-hand was a cat's-eye ring. Which ring is yet in possession of my brother. Find this and the derelict. Diligently search the Gufford Arms . . . chambers and effects of the divers gentlemen . . . your labours will not be in vain."

"Strange!" murmured Helen. "How came this here, I wonder?"

"Ah . . . cat's-eye ring!" muttered the Viscount.

"It was my ring!" she said thoughtfully.

"But you gave it to Gufford, eh, madam?"

"Never!"

"Why then . . . it's very evident he found it!"

"Say, 'was the murderer found it?'"

"And is he not the murderer proclaimed?"

"True," nodded my lady, "proclaimed, but not proved."

Now at this moment was a tuneless whistling, and down one of the paths came a man trundling a wheelbarrow, a tall, gypsy-seeming fellow, to whom my lady beckoned and, crumpling up the paper, tossed it into the barrow.

IT WAS evening, as Master Titus Oldcraft, clattered into the yard of the Gufford Arms and espied a tall, gypsy-seeming fellow, who chanced to be gazing at him and sundry Master Titus gruffly called to him to take his horse. When the country fellow moved got and gaped only more, Titus cursed him roundly, shaking his pom-pom. Viscount Brocklehurst rode into the yard, and Titus, having the very greatest respect for "the quality," instantly checked his furious tirade and, taking off his hat, bowed with utmost deference.

The Viscount nodded sulkily, and rode on across the wide yard, but having dismounted he stood a moment eyeing the dusty Oldcraft with eyes furtive yet keen. "You're the Constable fellow, ain't you?" inquired the Viscount. "From London . . . after Mr. Gufford's murderer, ain't you?"

"Ay, my lord, I am. All day and night, too, my lord, if necessary."

"Well, well—how's your luck?"

"Bad, my lord; bad, I must confess," sighed Oldcraft, shaking his lank head. "I've no luck so far, but I'm on his track, my lord—"

"Are you so, are you, now?"

"Indeed, my lord—though 'tis very evident the country folk hereabouts are aiding him, my lord."

"Ha, I've think so?"

"My lord, I'm convinced of it. They're aiding and abetting him, my lord, comforting, sustaining, and warning him, my lord. This very morning word comes of him being at Littleton, so to Littleton we go, only to hear he's gone on to Scaford, so there we go, and hear he's just rid off to Brightelmston, so thither we gallop and plaguey hot, my lord, but—"

"Push," cried the Viscount pettishly. "I do but chase a shadow! The devil, 'y' must seek him nearer home, man!"

"Does 'y' lordship mean his house of Wear?"

"Ay, or thereabouts," nodded the Viscount. "But then are ye quite sure the murderer is Sir Richard Gufford?"

"Who else, my lord?" "Ay, that's the question, who?—the dead man had other enemies aplenty," 'tis said! And then, what's all this I'm hearing of a cat's-eye ring, eh?" "My lord, I've heard no mention of such." "Not . . . not heard on't? 'Tis said the murderer wore a ring set with a cat's-eye stone. 'Tis whispered everywhere—are 'y deaf? Are 'y blind?"

THRUSTING sudden hand into the pocket of his flower-embroidered waistcoat, the Viscount fumbled there impatiently, and presently drew thence a crumpled paper, and thrust into Master Oldcraft's ready hand the note my lady Helen had tossed into the gardener's barrow.

"Well?" demanded the Viscount, while Oldcraft stared at this torn paper. "Well?" "Very well, my lord, ay, unless it be a hum, my lord, a hoax." "Tush!" exclaimed the Viscount. "My lord, whence had ye this?" "I picked it up in the garden at the Mount House." "And how," said Oldcraft, frowning at the letter, "how should it come there, my lord?" "How should I know? There 'twas found and there it is, hoax or no."

"Why, it may be no hoax, my lord. Wif your lordship's kind permission, I'll keep it—" "Why, then, keep it, man. Act on it or do what ye will." "Act on it?" repeated Oldcraft. "Doth your lordship mean search the apartments of 'y gentlemen?" "Do as 'y will, fellow, all's one to me." "Pray, my lord, how many gentlemen lodge here at present?" "You should know this," retorted the Viscount. "Why, my lord, so I do. There was my lord Canberry, but he's gone back to London, there's Mr. Trumpington, but he's away—which leaves Capt. Despard and—" "Myself," nodded the Viscount. "Very true, my lord. As to this cat's-eye ring, now—hath your lordship any suspicions, any?" "No, no, I'm no Constable, so—"

Here, chancing to catch sight of the country fellow gazing at him over the half-door, Viscount Brocklehurst stopped to point at him with his whip: "Ha, will 'y stare at your betters, rascal, will ye peep, will ye pry?" "Ar—quoth the fellow and knocking an eyebrow he chuckled. "What . . . who—who is he?" "A half-wit, I judge, sir," answered Master Oldcraft, also cowering at the fellow in question. "Now concerning this cat's-eye ring, my lord," persisted Master Titus, "no search this inn I must have a warrant."

"Well, Sir John Parret is a justice—" "True, my lord, but Sir John is away at Lewes and Leamington." "Tush!" exclaimed the Viscount, and strode away into the house, whither, after momentary hesitation, Master Oldcraft ventured to follow him.

THE next morning was hot, sunburned and still; the country fellow sprawled upon one of the broad, hospitable settles before the Gufford Arms; a stalwart, loose-limbed fellow in patched and stained smock-frock, his gaitered legs and heavy boots dusty with travel. Motionless he lay, long legs outstretched, dozing.

After some while, Tom Pitt appeared, stout freckled despite heavy spurred boots, but on his way to the inn-yard paused a moment to stare with his narrow furtive eyes at the somnolent countryman asprawl on the weatherworn settle.

"You're a stranger hereabouts, eh, friend?" he questioned. The countryman snored gently, whereupon Tom Pitt stooped to peer under the wide-eaved hat, but seeing no more than a dark, sunburned cheek, ventured to poke the sleeper gently with his whip.

"A stranger, eh?" Pitt repeated, and at the same time gave vigorous shoves and pulls to the sprawling body of the sleeping youth.

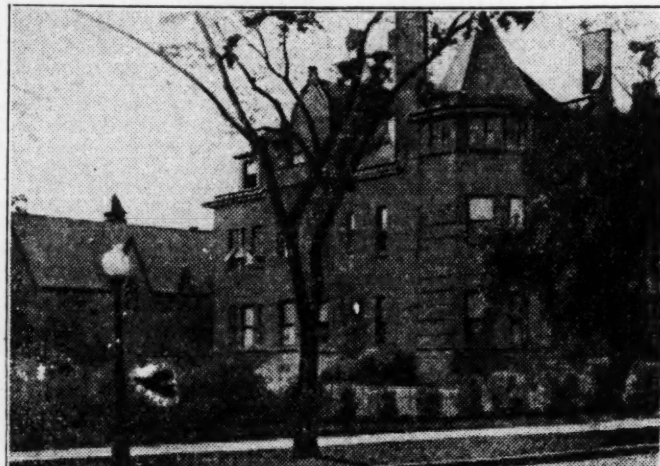

The man, stirred, muttering sleepily, "Romany . . . my son—" "Aha, a gypsy!" quoth Pitt, and betook himself to the stables, whence he issued presently on horseback, and trotted away, while from the shadow of shapeless hat the countryman watched him out of sight with eyes remarkably keen and wide-awake.

The Intimate DIARY Of Peggy JOYCE

With Ziegfeld and Erlanger in New York Where She Gets a Line To Speak Which Lifts Her Out Of the Show Girl Class at Once

By Peggy Hopkins Joyce

The home of Stanley Joyce where Peggy reigned in Chicago during her third matrimonial venture.

CHAPTER VI.

I WENT there in a taxicab and there was Madame Frances who has a marvelous personality, she is so good and her hats and gowns are so wonderful, and she said: Come on my child we are going to see about getting you a job.

And we went to the office of a Mr. Ziegfeld he is a theatrical man and Madame Frances went in and soon she came out again and said: I have to go now but you wait here and they will call you. There were lots of other beautiful girls in the waiting room they were all expensively dressed and some of them Glared at me and I felt very scared, and finally a man came out and said: Which of you is Mrs. Hopkins?

I am, I said. Well, then, come with me he said. I am Mr. Kingston the publicity man for Mr. Ziegfeld and I am taking you in to see him. Do not be frightened he won't eat you and just tell him all he wants to know.

We went in a great big office and at a desk there was a rather good-looking man, not very tall, and lovely gray hair. He did not say a word for a moment just looked at me, and I felt very bashful.

Then he said: So you're the little lady from Washington who wants to go on the Stage are you? Well you are certainly a knockout for looks I will hand you that. Let us look at your legs. So he looked at my legs like he was looking at a picture he was buying and then he said: Well if you can do anything at all on the stage you will do. Won't she Kingston? A knockout, sir, said Kingston.

MR. ZIEGFELD said: Come with me, have you ever been on the stage? I said no, because why tell about the bicycle act when I might be a big star? And they took me to a big stage and there was a piano and another gentleman sat on the stage and Mr. Ziegfeld said: This is Mr. Erlanger. He is my partner.

Come here, little girl said Mr. Erlanger. What can you do. So I said I did not know, and smiled at him though I was very nervous, and Mr. Ziegfeld said: Let's see you walk across the stage. No, just naturally. I felt silly but I did what he said and Erlanger said: She's got the looks all right. She knows how to walk too said Mr. Ziegfeld.

Then he came over to me and he said: Listen little one if you will listen to me I will make you the most famous girl in New York. Every year I pick out one girl and throw the spots on her and you are going to be the girl this year if you and me can get together. Now I am going to offer you a hundred dollars a week, but of course this is a great deal of money so you must work hard and try to justify my faith in you. I think you are a nice little girl and Mr. Erlanger does too, but you cannot get anywhere on the stage unless you work hard.

They told me to report the next day and I am going back tomorrow and I am the happiest girl in New York. I do not care if the other girls are jealous. I just love Madame Frances she is wonderful and Mr. Ziegfeld and Mr. Erlanger are wonderful too.

One hundred dollars a week! Later she was to be offered thousands but to the little girl who had been heart-broken and penniless and starving only a few hours before, a hundred dollars was a great fortune. More, it was her definite emancipation from her life as a leader of Washington society, a life she had voluntarily left.

and nice to me. He may be colored but he has a great big heart and every one adores him in the theater. He is our big star the other is Fanny Brice.

times they are gorgeous. I have five and they make me look wonderful. Mr. Erlanger said publicly I was the most beautiful girl in the show and the other girls are very cruel and nasty to me. I am beginning to hate them.

There is a lot of trouble with the stage manager who is a very rough man and says he cannot understand my Southern accent. You can't talk like that in New York, he said. But Mr. Williams said she will get it soon, don't worry little one.

And of course because I have a line with Bert Williams the girls are jealous. I have had quite a quarrel with one of the girls in fact almost a fight but we were stopped and the stage manager said he would fire us if we did it again.

Thursday. When I got to the theater today they told me to get my make-up box from the girls dressing room and put it in Miss Brice's. I could hardly believe my ears.

So Mr. Ziegfeld personally said: I am putting you in with Miss Brice who has kindly consented to teach you something, you do not know much now, you know, and I think you are getting a swelled head with those other girls. You should not be so superior. It only makes enemies for you.

Of course I did not argue with Mr. Ziegfeld because I was so grateful for being put with Miss Brice who is wonderful, but I think a girl should always be a little superior, especially when she has a speaking part.

PEGGY'S DIARY UP TO TODAY'S CHAPTER.
I BEGAN writing my diary the day I ran away from home when I was fifteen. I wanted to be a great actress, and Mr. Huertin, who was the world's Greatest Cyclist, said he would take me with him in his act. On the train I met the handsomest man I ever saw, and he asked me to marry him. I did, but the next day I ran away.

My mother and Granny had the marriage annulled and sent me to a fashionable Boarding School in Washington. One night at a dance I met a millionaire, and he asked me to marry him, so I became Mrs. Sherburne Philbrick Hopkins. I loved Sherby and had wonderful times in Washington, because my husband was very prominent socially.

But when people began to talk about Sherby and a Miss — it made me so unhappy I ran away. Of course I went to New York because I wanted to go on the stage.

I went to several theaters but they turned me away. I didn't have any money and I didn't know what to do. But my picture was in the newspaper because I had run away.

a little girl I have always wanted nice things and luxuries and love and I suppose once or twice I have said to myself, "why be beautiful if you cannot have what you want?" Yes, but the trouble is when a girl gets what she wants she does not know it and thinks she wants something else. When I was a school-girl I was crazy to be the wife of a millionaire and he in Society and have my husband love me a lot, but when I got all three I was not satisfied because it was not at all the life I imagined it would be.

After all I suppose to be fair to Sherby I should have known that a husband can't help it if there are days when he feels he cannot love his wife, he knows the feeling will go and he will love her all the more afterward. But a girl like me wants to be loved all the time.

Anyway Broadway is not at all like Washington. I think I like it better because the people are more real and human, they are not always expecting you to be dignified and social. Maybe it's because Broadway has a heart and Society only a mind. That sounds funny from me but a girl must think about serious things sometimes make a fool of yourself over any man unless he can help you. Miss Brice says there are 10 things a Girl should know about men. They are:

1. Make sure they have got the money they are spending.
2. Give them the air when they tell about the wife who doesn't understand them.
3. Find out about them before you go out to lunch.
4. Lots of men with bad reputations have good hearts but a good heart is no good if the man cashes a bad check.
5. Don't stop a man making promises but see that he keeps them. Nine out of 10 men will welch in the morning on a promise made at night.
6. Don't accept presents from a man unless you love him or they are valuable presents.
7. Don't love any man unless you have to and then only if he loves you and can Back you Up.
8. Ninety-nine per cent of all the trouble in the world is caused by love and a girl on the stage can't afford trouble of any kind.
9. When a man tries to keep you from the snow or rehearsal give him the ice unless he takes you to the City Hall, and don't go as far as that unless you have seen his bank book and know he can support you in a manner you have been accustomed to.
10. Two men are safer than one on a party.

Of course Miss Brice was only joking, and I think she is one of the loveliest characters I know. I wonder if I shall ever understand Men? Of course I do not know very many, only a few like Martin and Charley Schwartz and Joe Gotsal and they are really only Acquaintances, not friends.

So I went to Miss Brice's dressing room and she came in and said, Oh, hello kiddo, so you are the kid who thinks she is a star, well, I'll try to make you one.

MISS BRICE said: I have a line with Bert Williams the girls are jealous. I have had quite a quarrel with one of the girls in fact almost a fight but we were stopped and the stage manager said he would fire us if we did it again.

peers so we are going to Belmont Park.

Thursday. We went to Belmont Park with Fanny in her Electric but we did not realize how far it was. The Electric was so slow and there was so many Big Cars on the road we only arrived in time for the Last Race and there were not any Society Men there anyway at least I did not see them. There weren't any interesting men there.

The Electric broke down on the way home and some men stopped and gave us a lift home. They were not Society Men, only book-makers or something like that, although they did not look Literary, one was quite nice and we had Refreshments at a place on the way. Of course I will never see them again, but one was quite nice.

TUESDAY. A boy named Stewart, really very nice, sent me some flowers called tulips. When I got the flowers they looked so funny at first. I cut off the tops and they looked better, and Fanny came in and said: "My heavens Child who sent you those flowers?" I said: "A boy named Stewart." "What a nice boy," said Fanny. "He is a real flower." "Yes, but the trouble is when a girl gets what she wants she does not know it and thinks she wants something else. When I was a school-girl I was crazy to be the wife of a millionaire and he in Society and have my husband love me a lot, but when I got all three I was not satisfied because it was not at all the life I imagined it would be."

gorgeous tulips!" and I showed her the card and she said: "why he is one of the richest kids in New York." Then she saw the roots and screamed: "Good heavens the girl has cut off the flowers and thrown away the bulbs!" and then she explained that the tulips were the most expensive flowers at that season, even more expensive than orchids, and it was the roots or bulbs that made them expensive because they kept on growing. Well how can a girl know everything?

Wednesday. I have met a marvelous man, very good looking, from Chilli. His name is Billy and he is very wealthy. His sister is having trouble in New York on account of having shot her husband for being untrue to her and he is here on her account. Billy and I are good friends but of course we can never be anything else because he has a wife in Chilli. He has shown me her picture and she is very beautiful, I hope they are happy because Billy is very nice, always a gentleman.

That was Peggy's first meeting with a man who later was to figure in her life in a tragic manner. Billy was one of those handsome South American men-about-town who are often so prominent in New York, London and particularly Paris society. As the Diary makes no further reference to him it appears that at this time he was only a casual acquaintance.

Peggy soon leaves the Follies chorus for a star's dressing-room in "Miss 1918."

The show is going quite well. One paper—I think it was the Journal, said I was the most photographed girl in New York, which is quite a compliment as of course I do not pay for my photographs. . . . I am playing a scene with Lew Fields in Miss 1918 and Irene Castle is in the show as well as Marion Davies and Beanie McCoy Davis. Irene Castle is very nice and I am sorry I had the fight over the star's dressing-room, but really a girl is either a star or she isn't, a star and I thought I was billed as the star.

WALL STREET STOCKS MOVE HIGHER OVER BROAD FRONT

TIME MONEY RATE SOMEWHAT FIRMER

General Motors Earned $2.01 a Share in Quarter—S. O. of Indiana Offer to Pan-American.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 22.—A broad upward movement of prices, embracing nearly all important groups of stocks, including the oils and the motors, took place in today's market. Traders and public utilities showed the most impressive strength, at least a dozen issues in those groups moving into new high ground. The rally reached its peak in the late afternoon trading, with final quotations generally around the highest of the day.

Meanwhile, the commodity markets turned reactionary. Wheat lost nearly half of yesterday's spectacular advance of 10 cents a bushel on forecasts of rain in the American Northwest and large receipts of the commodity.

Call money held steady at 7 per cent all day, with a fairly plentiful supply of funds available. Time money was somewhat firmer, with business transacted at 8 per cent for all maturities.

General Motors Earns $2.01.
The General Motors Corporation published its second quarter report after the close, showing $2.01 a share as contrasted with $2.07 in the corresponding period a year ago, on a comparable basis. Standard Oil of Indiana offered 7 shares of its stock for six shares of Pan-American B, in which it already holds a controlling interest.

Steel shares were in brisk demand in the late trading. Unusually favorable half-year earnings by Bethlehem Steel and U. S. Steel Corporations are expected. U. S. Steel common closed more than three points higher and Bethlehem, Republic and several others advanced a point or more. Inland moved up three points to a new high at 95.

American Type Founders. Bendix Aviation, International Harvester, Utilities, Power & Light and Worthington, all established new peak prices in the last hour of trading, the gains ranging from two to five and one-half points. American Telephone climbed more than four points and radio three and three-quarters.

General Asphalt Leads Oil.
General Asphalt was the leader of the oil group, selling near 4 points higher. Rio Grande moved up more than 3 points and Skelly changed hands in fairly large volume at advancing prices.

Establishment of a new high by Allegheny Corporation. at 53 1/2 featured the late advance in the railroad and allied shares. Chrysler, with an extreme gain of more than 5 points, was the leader in the motor group in which there was heavy short covering.

A further advance in Sterling Cables to around $4.82 1/2-3/4, in reflection of the heavy tourist expenditures and the ratification of the French debt agreement, was the only development of consequence in the foreign exchange market.

Consolidated Bank Statement.
The weekly consolidated statement of reporting member banks in the Reserve System, showed total loans of those institutions are now $1,098,000,000 above the corresponding date last year. The bulk of this increase is accounted for by an expansion of $190,000,000 on securities, with $205,000,000 representing an increase in expanding in loans is offset by part by a drop of $178,000,000 in the bank's own investments with the result that the total of loans and investments stands $519,000,000 net higher.
